79 Known Dead, 671 Hurt in St. Louis Tornado

Five Thousand Business Structures and Homes Destroyed or Damaged—Damage Estimated From 10 to 100 Million Dollars—Wealthy Section Suffers Severely.

St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP).—The death list in yesterday's tornado in St. Louis and vicinity mounted to seventy-nine today as additional bodies were found and injured victims died. Of these all but seven were identified. There were 671 persons treated for injuries, 5,000 homes and business structures destroyed or damaged over a devastated area of six square miles, and official estimates of the damage running from $10,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Downtown Section Unscathed.

Downtown St. Louis escaped virtually unscathed, but some of the city's finest homes along Lindell boulevard from Newstead avenue to Grand boulevard were laid watse.

The area of greatest destruction by roughly southeast to northeast bounded by Forest Park boulevard, Sarah street, Pendelton avenue and Hebert street.

Takes Zig-zag Course.

The black, swirling funnel seemed to have appeared without warning in the vicinity of Forest Park, to have pursued a zig-zag course for six miles to leap the Mississippi river and dissipate its fury with a last twist at the Illinois tri-cities, Venice, Granite City and Madison, in which six persons were killed and twenty injured.

Militiamen On Duty.

Every St. Louis policeman and fireman was called out on special duty but their numbers were inadequate to patrol the stricken area and a regiment of state militiamen was ordered on duty. A citizens' relief committee of 38 with Mayor Victor Miller as chairman, was organized to direct relief work. The Red Cross placed a relief station in the center of the stricken area and 100 automobiles were used as ambulances. Mayor Miller issued an appeal for funds.

The damage estimate of from $10,000,000 to $100,000,000 came from E. E. Christopher, building commissioner. Insurance men made a flat estimate of $75,000,000.

Second In St. Louis.

The tornado was the second in St. Louis's history. The first struck 31 years ago and claimed 140 lives in St. Louis and 160 in the vicinity. The two tornadoes followed generally the same course. The estimated area of the twister of 1896 was eight miles in length and from one quarter to a mile and a quarter wide.

Through the wilderness of rumpled houses, fallen trees, wrecked factories and business buildings and twisted wires, men dug frantically into the darkness. Seeking the bodies of five missing children in the recently remodelled Central High School workers found the bodies of two little girls. Seven school buildings, housing 6,500 children, were in the tornado-swept area, but only at Central High was there a report of fatalities. Eighteen other pupils in that school were injured when a huge tower was sent crashing down on the auditorium.

Shell-Torn City.

Old brick houses were crumpled like egg shells in one part of the area. The newer homes were not spared and gaping holes where the wind wrenched off a wing or lifted a roof gave the district the appearance of a shell-torn city.

Rescue workers rushing into the zone found pathetic sights of men, women and children standing about dazed and helpless, while others dug into the heaps of brick and wood for loved ones.

For an hour, before the twister struck, the air was heavy and portentous with storm. The continuous low rumbling of thunder was punctuated with lightning. The oppressiveness was dispelled by a rising wind and suddenly the telltale black clouds appeared in the sky.

The Coming of the Storm.

In a twinkling the crashing of glass and the singing of the wind in the trees announced the coming of the tornado. Chimneys crushed, houses heaved and fell, while the air was dark with dust and flying missiles.

Automobiles moved crazily about, overturning and wrecking themselves like plaything of children. Everywhere was heard the thud of falling walls and chimneys, and the tearing sound of piazzas being wrenched from their foundations.

Swift in its coming, the tornado was as quick in leaving. From the ruined homes and stores the frightened wet occupants appeared in a stream. They found a wilderness of fallen trees to block their way. Hysterical women supported by men picked their way out of the debris.

As the danger from fallen power wires became great, self-appointed guards stationed themselves until police arrived to take charge.

Relief Work Begun.

A cordon was hastily placed about the section while elementary relief work was begun within. As the

Roosevelt Warns Republicans of Smith in 1928

Must Exert Every Effort to Dispel Shadow of Tammany Hall That Lives Over White House—Contrasts the Financial Policies of National Capital and State.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Recognizing Governor Smith as a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the presidency next year, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, as temporary chairman of the Republican state convention here today, warned his party that it must exert every effort to "dispel the shadow of Tammany Hall that lives athwart the White House."

"The eyes of the country are turned to New York at this time," he declared. "What we do this year will be taken as an indication of what we intend to do next year. If we fail in our mission of increasing our Republican majority in the Legislature, the country will say, New York is Tammany-tied, she wishes to see in the White House Governor Smith, with the shadow of 14th street resting across him. We must not permit such an assumption."

The pasing of seven years of Republican administration in Washington was declared by Colonel Roosevelt to have shown a "remarkable record of achievement," and he recounted the record of the administration of President Coolidge.

Contrasts Policies.

Contrasting the financial policies in effect in the national Capital with those of Governor Smith, he asked: "Suppose a Smith fiscal policy had been carried on by the Republicans at Washington during the last seven years? How long would our prosperity have endured?"

"It would have crumbled in a year," he asserted, "and bread lines would be standing where automobiles are now parked."

In illustration of the financial policies of the governor, Colonel Roosevelt cited the executive's advocacy of bond issues for the financing of public improvement, as against the payment of expenses from current revenues as desired by the Republicans.

"The end is not in sight," he continued. "Governor Smith suggests new bond issues. He is like the bride who thought she must have plenty of money in the bank as long as she still had checks in her check book. As long as the printing presses hold out, Governor Smith believes the state will be solvent."

The Negro Problem.

Turning to the negro problem in the south, Colonel Roosevelt asked Governor Smith how he stood on the question, and continued:

"At this moment the leader of the Democratic party in this state aspires to be the nominee of that party for the presidency. He has professed that he is the friend of the negroes in this state. If there is sincerity in this profession he should at once publicly demand of his national party justice for the negroes in the south. He will not do this, because he does not wish to offend the southern delegates whose votes at the convention he wants."

All through the Smith candidacy, Roosevelt asserted, there lies the shadow of Tammany Hall, and, he added, "a man must be judged by the company he keeps, and though we do not question the personal integrity of Governor Smith, he is sponsored and backed by Tammany Hall."

Convict Injured.

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Thomas J. Cleary, 17, a convict in Auburn prison, had his right arm almost torn from his body this morning while working in the prison laundry. In some manner his arm was caught in a whirling device inside a tub, and before the machinery could be stopped the arm was badly crushed.

Dutcher Case Adjourned.

William Dutcher, 54 years old, of Phoenicia, was arrested Thursday on Converse street by the police. Dutcher was charged with disorderly conduct in using indecent language. This morning in police court he pleaded not guilty and the hearing was adjourned to Tuesday.

Not So Much Sugar.

William P. Lehr, grocer, of 622 Broadway is selling ten pounds of sugar for 62 cents. In the merchant's advertisement in The Freeman of Thursday evening an additional cipher on the ten made the misstatement that Mr. Lehr is selling 100 pounds for the same price.

Koennecke Plane Crashes at Bagdad

Biplane Germania Damaged in Take Off in Continuance of His Journey—Koennecke and Companions Uninjured.

Bagdad, Irak, Sept. 30 (AP).—Lieut. Otto Koennecke's biplane Germania, in which he was attempting a flight from Cologne to America by eastern route, crashed here today as he was taking off in continuance of his journey. The plane was damaged but Lieutenant Koennecke and his companions were not injured.

Lieutenant Koenecke left Cologne September 29, accompanied in the Germania by Count George Cedric Solms-Laubach, his financial backer, and Johannes Hermann, radio expert of the Junkers firm. Their first hop, to Angora, the Turkish capital, was successful the plane covering the 1,875 miles on an average speed in excess of 100 miles an hour.

There, however, their good fortune seemed to end. After putting the machine in condition for continuance of the flight, they hopped off last Saturday morning.

It had been announced that they would attempt to make Basra at the head of the Persian Gulf, a distance of 1,050 miles and their non-arrival there for four days caused considerable uneasiness in German and other continental aeriel circles.

On Wednesday, however, they turned up at Bagdad and it developed they had abandoned the non-stop flight to Basra because of the inadequate space at Angora for a take off with sufficient gas for the trip and for the further reason that a heavily loaded plane would have difficulty in getting over the Taurus mountains.

Instead, they flew from Angora to Alepho, Syria, and stayed there two days for needed adjustments to the plane before proceeding. A forced landing because of motor trouble in the neighborhood of Moslemiyeh, not far from Alepho, interrupted their trip to Bagdad, and they did not arrive there until Wednesday.

Local Realtors Will Advertise

Kingston Real Estate Board Members Are of Opinion That More Persistent Advertising Collectively in The Freeman Is Advisable.

A meeting of the members of the Kingston Real Estate Board was held Thursday evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Broadway. During the meeting several topics of interest to realtors were discussed, among them being the advisability of more persistent advertising collectively as realtors in The Kingston Freeman. It was the opinion that more persistent advertising collectively would emphasize and bring home to the public the service which the realtors of the city can render the public. Plans for collective advertising were discussed.

Several members of the Kingston Real Estate Board will attend the convention of New York Real Estate Boards which will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York city on October 12-15. The local board will be represented by a good sized delegation. This convention, which promises to be the largest convention of this kind ever held in New York state will attract realtors from all sections and a very interesting program has been planned for the three days' session, both of a business and entertainment nature.

Soviet Welfare Agent in Kingston.

Russian University Professor Recommended to Visit Ulster County to Study Child Welfare Problem As Handled Here.

Dr. V. Y. Kufayeff, professor at the University of Moscow, who has been visiting the United States as a special representative of the Soviet Government of Russia to study child welfare in the United States, was in Kingston Wednesday and while here was a guest of Judge Joseph M. Fowler and Mary C. Doremus, Ulster County Agent for Dependent Children. During his visit to Kingston he investigated the operation of the children's court and the activities of the local State Charities Aid Association.

During the summer months Dr. Kufayeff, as special agent for his government, has visited the United States and while here had visited Washington, Philadelphia, New York city and other larger cities where child welfare work was studied. In order to get a real knowledge of how the work was handled in the smaller communities he sought some community where he might observe the work of the county. He was sent to Kingston as the local office is considered one of the model organizations operating in the smaller communities. The local office, which was established in 1912, has passed the experimental stage and is well organized with a competent agent in charge and is considered by the home office as one of the best organized offices in the state.

His Interest in Kingston.

Dr. Kafayeff's particular interest in Kingston was to observe how the local press agent was related to the county, state and to the children's court and to observe the actual operation of the system and learn how the local office operated in conjunction with the state and county offices.

During his visit here Miss Doremus explained the operation of her department, instructed him in the operation of the office and demonstrated by actual work how the department functioned. A trip was taken to one of the boarding homes for dependent children and the operation of the home was explained. He was also afforded an opportunity to talk with some of the children at the home, and learn from them some of the facts as viewed from their side of the case. The visit to the home was of particular interest since this was one of the things in which Dr. Kufayeff was particularly interested.

His visit to Judge Fowler was to learn the operation of a children's court and how its problems were handled. Also as to the relation of the court to the county agent and to the probation officer and to the child. Dr. Kufayeff was particularly interested in seeing the children's court in operation but due to an engagement to speak in Boston Thursday evening it was necessary for him to leave. He is to return to Russia Tuesday of next week.

Visits Ashokan Reservoir.

During his visit to Ulster county he had an opportunity to pass the Ashokan reservoir on one of his trips to visit a boarding home for children and he was particularly interested in the great engineering problems which had to be overcome in the construction of the reservoir.

He was desirous of visiting the Napanoch Institution for Mental Delinquents but lack of time prevented a visit to that institution.

'Phantom Stabber' Strikes Another

Terror of Bridgeport Young Women Brings His Total of Victims To 21 and Still Eludes The Police.

Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 30 (AP).—"The phantom stabber" for two and a half years the terror of girls and young women walking through the streets of Bridgeport in late afternoon or at night, has brought the total number of his victims to 21 and still eludes the police.

His latest attack came early last night when Ruth Stillings, 14 year old high school tennis star, on her way home with a friend from the Beardsley Park courts, was stabbed in the right breast. Fifteen minutes after the stabbing police began a search of the district but the girl's assailant had escaped.

Where the stabber in many of the attacks has been a flitting shadow, "a phantom" that has struck with a sharp pointed instrument and melted away in the darkness, defying description by the victim, the "phantom" that caused the one inch incision in Miss Stilling's breast took the form of a dark complexioned young man, about five feet four inches in height, wearing dark gray trousers, a gray cap and a blue sweater with dark stripes. He appeared to be about 21 years old, and Miss Stilling was certain that she would be able to recognize the man if she ever saw him again.

Although the stabber was more daring in his attack on the tennis star, his method did not vary from that employed in many of the previous stabbings. He brushed against the girl as he ran past her and then ran on toward the interior of the park.

"The phantom" has not restricted his activities to the open, having slashed in churches and public buildings as well as on street corners and in the day as well as at night.

Beach's Lawyer Is Indicted

Edison Hedges Is Held In $2,000 Bail on Two Charges of Obstructing Justice—Says He Made No Statement.

May's Landing, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP).—Edison Hedges, counsel for Willis Beach, wanted for complicity in the slaying of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl near Hammonton, September 15, today was held in $2,000 bail on two charges of obstructing justice.

Bail was furnished by B. Louis Blumberg, an Atlantic City lawyer, who is tax supervisor of Atlantic county.

The bail was fixed by Judge William H. Smathers.

"I have been indicted," said Hedges in a statement to the court, "and undoubtedly there is some evidence which would tend to substantiate the indictments.

"However, if I had been heard by the grand jury, I believe I would have been vindicated. These indictments were only for the purpose of finding out where Beach is. I made no statement to any reporter that I told Beach to leave this jurisdiction. I made no statement that I knew where Beach was."

Blast Kills Woman.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—An explosion of mysterious origin in a Bronx apartment house early today killed a woman, broke a score of windows and drove members of the 48 families residing there into the street in their night apparel.

Fall Opening Display Uptown Next Friday and Saturday

Veiled Windows Will Be Unveiled at 7:30 Friday Evening, Displaying the Smartest and Best in Fall Goods—Cup to Be Awarded For Best Display—Unusual Effort Will Produce Unusual Display.

Kingston's Uptown Business Men's Association, after disposing of a beefsteak dinner at the Advance restaurant Thursday evening, appraised final reports of the big Fall Opening Display that will occur on Friday evening, October 7, and continue through Saturday and Saturday evening, October 8.

Windows will be veiled Friday while the displays are being arranged and the decorated and illuminated windows will be simultaneously unveiled at 7:30 in the evening. Everybody in business uptown, whether a member of the Association or not, may compete for the prizes, and every store, whether competing or not, is expected to contribute to the brilliancy of the scene by turning on all of its window lights. This has never been done before and is expected to add greatly to the attractiveness of the display.

Cup for Best Window.

Instead of cash prizes for the finest displays, as formerly, there will be a handsome and costly cup offered for the best window display. This cup the winner will retain until someone takes it away at the next display, by having the best window. The cup must be won three times by the same store before it becomes the permanent property of anyone. Ribbons for second, third and fourth prizes and honorable mention for fifth, sixth and seventh.

Determining the Winner.

Instead of merchants or decoration experts, the judges will be selected from among the shopping public, two women and three men. Perfection will be 100 points and of these 50 will be for selling power of the window, 25 for arrangement and 25 for color harmony.

Former displays of this kind have drawn large crowds and this, the most elaborate and gorgeous of all, is expected to bring out a record attendance, as it will be well worth coming many miles to see.

Solving the Parking Problem.

After approving the plans for Fall Display, the eternal parking question was discussed at great length. It was made very clear that congestion is growing worse, due to parking of cars along the business streets and that this is inconveniencing customers and driving away trade by making it impossible for buyers to either discharge passengers or pick them up with the goods they have purchased. Radical remedies were suggested and it was finally decided to ask for an absolute no parking ordinance, with modifications at certain hours and in certain places.

As an instance of conditions now it was stated that John street is lined on both sides with parked cars, so that a truck discharging freight cannot get to the curb but must stop in the middle of the street, blockading even one way traffic. The street was blocked in this way at the time of the Leventhal fire, forcing the firemen to wait or detour.

Clerks' Association Proposed.

Mr. Ward, representing the Central Trade and Labor Council and the American Federation of Labor, set forth the advantages of organizing a Clerks' Association and explained the purposes and methods of such an organization. It was not a mere union, to obtain better wages and hours, he said, but was for the serious minded clerks to meet and discuss increased efficiency, realizing that the interest of the employer was their own. The organization also has a death benefit. Referred to the executive committee.

The next meeting of the Merchants' Association will be held at the Stuyvesant Hotel in about two weeks.

12 Arraignments In County Court, Four Sentenced

Charges Against Defendants Range from Assault to Manslaughter—Fines for Pistol Toter and Slot Machine Owner—Auto Joy Rider and Forger Sentenced.

A short but business like session of Ulster county court was held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the court house with County Judge Joseph M. Fowler presiding. Twelve defendants were arraigned before the court on charges ranging from assault to manslaughter, two defendants who had previously been arraigned were sentenced, while two of those arraigned Thursday entered pleas of guilty on being arraigned and the court disposed of both of the cases immediately. Court then went into recess until next Thursday at 5 o'clock when there will probably be further arraignments of defendants who were indicted by the last grand jury which handed up 15 sealed indictments.

Indicted for Manslaughter.

Howard T. Brooks, a young lad from Shokan who it is alleged operated the Ford machine some time ago which ran into and killed a man at Saugerties, was arraigned under an indictment charging him with manslaughter, second degree. It is alleged that Brooks and a companion after attending a party drove to Woodstock and on to Saugerties where at the southern end of the village they failed to make a right angle turn and crashed into a parked motorcycle which had been driven some distance off the concrete road while repairs were being made. The operator of the machine was crushed between the machine and the entrance gate to a private roadway. It was the opinion of the Saugerties police that the young men had been drinking, and they were arrested. Frank W. Brooks who appeared for the defendant entered a plea of not guilty and bail was continued. The accident happened on June 5 last.

Slot Machine Owner Fined.

Benjamin Fein of the town of Wawarsing entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possessing a slot machine and paid a fine of $50.

Trio Plead Not Guilty.

Christie Tuthill, John Clarke and Joseph Leggio, charged by indictment with the crime of robbery, third degree, alleged to have been committed at the town of Marlborough on June 16 last, entered pleas of not guilty. F. W. Brooks appeared for them and bail was continued.

Edison Baker, charged with assault, second degree, alleged to have been committed at the town of Marbletown on September 16 last, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned. He said he would secure counsel later. Bail was continued.

Disorderly House Indictments.

Morris Levine of Napanoch was charged with maintaining a disorderly house, a house of ill fame and a public nuisance. The crime is alleged to have been committed on June 3 and continuing until the date of the indictment. William A. Kaercher, of Cunningham & Kaercher, appeared for Judge William D. Cunningham and entered a plea of not guilty for Levine.

Edward Pierce of East Kingston, proprietor of the old Flatbush school house, was arraigned on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house, a public nuisance and a house of ill fame in the town of Ulster from June on until the date of the indictment. He was represented by Chris J. Flanagan and a plea of not guilty was entered. Bail was continued.

Fred Perry of East Kingston was arraigned on a similar charge and entered a plea of not guilty. Mr. Flanagan also appeared for Perry.

An Automobile Case.

Joseph Long, charged with grand larceny, second degree, an automobile case, entered a plea of not guilty. The crime is alleged to have been committed in this city on August 22. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for Long and bail was increased to $1,500.

Charles Rougier, charged in three indictments with injuring a person while operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, entered a plea of not guilty. The crime is alleged to have been committed in the town of Ulster on May 29 last. F. W. Brooks appeared for him and bail was continued.

Pistol Toter Fined $75.

Carmin Ciaramelli, charged with possessing a pistol without a permit and accidentally shooting a person, entered a plea of guilty. It is alleged that the defendant while possessing a pistol on August 7, accidentally shot a nephew and also injured himself. Andrew J. Cook appeared for the defendant and said that the shooting was purely accidental and the defendant no longer had the gun. He asked the court to be lenient. Judge Fowler said under the circumstances he would impose a fine. He fined defendant $75 or 15 days in jail. The fine was paid.

Elmendorf Sent To Elmira.

District Attorney Traver moved judgment in the case of The People vs. Kenneth Elmendorf. Elmendorf had formerly pleaded guilty to taking a car in this city for a joy ride. He had been convicted before of a felony and the court sentenced him to the Elmira State Reformatory until discharged by law.

Forger Sent To Dannemora.

Walter Clarke, who pleaded guilty to forgery when arraigned, was also sentenced. He had previously been convicted of a similar crime in county court and Judge Fowler sentenced him to the Clinton State Prison at Dannemora for an indeterminate term of not less than one year and six months or more than two years.

Court then adjourned until November 5 at 5 o'clock.

Annual Donation Day For Home For the Aged

Another year has rolled around and once again the board of managers (of which Mrs. Virgil B. Van Wagonen is president) of the Home for the Aged in Ulster county, situated at 95 Green street in this city, are to have a Donation Day on Friday, October 14, and are making an appeal to the charitably inclined residents of this county to help them in this most worthy cause. The shelves, which were so heavily laden a year ago, not only with the necessities but a few of the luxuries of life through the very generous response to the appeal then made, are now almost empty. All who are able and feel so inclined are asked to make a contribution either in money, canned goods, cereals, soap, flour, sugar or other provisions, in fact, anything that will aid in bringing comfort to these old ladies in their declining days. The people of this city and county have demonstrated in times past that they have never been called upon to support any worthy cause without willingly and generously responding to the appeal. Of all the charities that might be mentioned, there is none greater than this one of looking after the aged and infirm, and bringing a little sunshine and comfort into their lives.

Very few people realize what a great demand there is for a home of this kind in this locality. The present home is nowhere large enough to accommodate all who apply for admission, and while people are constantly making bequests in their wills yet a sufficient sum has not yet been realized to justify the managers in putting an addition to the home which is sadly needed. The board of managers are not asking for any large contributions, although they would be greatly appreciated. They are simply asking for a sufficient supply of canned goods and provisions to enable them to supply the wants of these old ladies for another year. If everyone who believes in helping his or her neighbor when he is in need will aid this work, there will be no question about its success.

Just think that some day you may be old with no home and no friends to look after you, and if you do give of your mite, remember that someone, somewhere has said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Pretzeleers are pantry pirates

Bong! Bong! And ten more bongs. The witching hour, by gum. Whisht!

Here we see an eating likeness of a couple of bold pretzeleers out for a little pantry piracy before they go to bed. This gives Father a chance to take a little more nourishment, and also to bite out his next morning's breakfast order:

Which, as any good pretzeleer knows, stands for ham and eggs.

Night biting isn't at all unusual in the homes of those who pretzel. O-So-Guds are so tasty and so easy to digest that they are a favorite midnight lunch.

No wonder. These pretzels, baked by Uneeda Bakers, are brittle, and crispy, and crunchy, and salty. They're just as good between meals as they are with soup, or salad, or sardines, or cheese, or with iced drinks.

Children love them, and rightly too. They are good for children.

SECRET CLOSET OF STORY FAME MAY BE DISCLOSED

House Where Herman Melville Wrote "Moby Dick" May Be Restored.

Pittsfield, Mass.—"Arrowhead," the old mansion in which Herman Melville lived 13 years and where he wrote his famed whaling story, "Moby Dick," may yield the truth about its secret closet.

The old house on Holmes road, now near dilapidation, has passed from the hands of the author's kindred. The new owners and their plans have not been disclosed, but there is a possibility that the old structure may be restored and preserved, it is said.

It is in the mammoth old chimney of the house that the secret closet may be found. The chimney is 12 feet square at its base and dominates the house.

Melville himself mentions the mysterious closet in his "I and My Chimney." He speaks of the chimney and himself as "two gray-haired old smokers," both "old settlers."

He termed the chimney the bully of the establishment. It was built of brick and stone and was placed in the very center of the house. On all four sides are hearths. Built into it are numerous small closets and cupboards.

Melville colors the suggestion of a hidden closet and possibly hidden treasure with a reference to a possibly fictitious merchant in the Indian trade once making his abode within its walls.

On the stones and panels of the chimney he had these words inscribed: "It is resolved between me and my chimney that I and my chimney will never surrender."

In writing of the closet, Melville said:

"At the second landing, midway up the chimney, is a mysterious door, entering into a mysterious closet; and here I keep mysterious cordials, of a choice, mysterious flavor, made by the constant maturing and subtle ripening of the chimney's gentle heat, distilled through that mass of masonry. Better for wines is it than voyages to the Indies; my chimney itself a tropic."

Local historians say the house was built in 1780 by Capt. David Bush, who made a famous inn of it for years. Melville acquired the mansion and began living there in 1851. William B. Morewood, who married a niece of the author, last occupied the old house. It was put up for sale several months ago.

Historic Clock Still Runs After 312 Years

Peoria, Ill.—Three hundred and twelve years old and still running, a clock owned by James R. Harrison, Peoria, is claimed to be the oldest in the state in actual use.

It was brought over from England before the War of 1812 and witnessed that war and the Civil war in the state of Virginia. During the latter struggle, it helped make history by being the hiding place of an eighteen-year-old Union sympathizer in a house surrounded by Confederates.

As the Confederates entered the house from both front and rear doors, the youth squeezed into the bottom of the old clock and escaped detection. However, as he made his escape from the clock he overturned it, and nearly ruined its usefulness. Several parts were broken and the clock sat idle for several years. Later it was fixed up and has been running since.

A trick in seasoning that makes food delicious

HOTELS famed for fine food have chefs who know this trick of seasoning. Spread a layer of Gulden's Mustard over steak, chops, roasts before putting on the fire. Add the golden drops to sauces, gravies, vegetables. It gives delicious appetizing zest. Gulden's combines the lively little mustard seed with the finest of spices. Thus it is a complete seasoner. Use it in your cooking.

FEW YOUTHFUL SUICIDES.

Another myth is exploded. There has been much concern about the "wave of youthful suicides" supposed to have followed the war along with other evils. Millions of good people were worried about it, and movements were started to combat the suicidal tendency of boys and girls. Now it is found that actually there has been no such tendency at all—nothing but occasional, sporadic cases with little or no relation to each other. The tendency is really the other way.

A widespread inquiry shows that between 1909 and 1924 the suicide rate steadily declined for all ages, and the most notable decline was in the younger groups. People over 60 have seemed almost as much inclined to suicide since the war as they were before, but the ages from 10 to 19, supposed to be the worst, show the biggest decrease of all in suicide percentages. Next to them in improvement comes the group from 20 to 29, and third the group from 30 to 39. So our young people are not weakly giving up the life struggle; they are clinging to life more tenaciously than ever.

FICTION FADS.

There are styles in fiction as well as in clothes and furniture. Right now, the conservative reaction against the dizziness of after-war days is showing itself very plainly in magazine stories. Heroes and heroines in large numbers are finding strength, simplicity and various types of come-back from various ills of body or character in the great out-of-doors. The strengthening of character under difficulties is becoming popular now, nowhere better exemplified than in Kathleen Norris's "Barberry Bush".

For a time no one was smart, or so considered, unless he went in for orgies of one description or another. And the orgies of sham intellectualism which ridiculed everything sound and basic in the common life of ordinary people were perhaps worse than any of the others. Now, if we are to believe the stories we read, the really smart people are those who have dignity and self-control and aren't ashamed to use those qualities when necessary or advisable.

It was time we had a conservative reaction. So far it shows no sign of developing mid-Victorian priggishness. The frankness which was the one bright spot in the jazz age may be retained to save the new age from that corroding influence.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Infantile paralysis cases throughout the country are increasing in number. The Public Health Service reports that 656 cases were known to be under treatment in the week ending September 17 as against 550 for the week before. There may not be an actual increase of that size, because some of the cases may have been in existence before, although coming under notice of the Health Service during that week. But by the same token, where there are observed cases in these numbers, it stands to reason that there are many more cases existing unrecognized.

The epidemic is nothing like so great or serious as it was in 1916, but it is serious enough. Cool weather usually brings an end to its spread, but many cool and heated seasons in turn will pass over the heads of most of the unfortunate children who contract the disease, before they are over its effects. Some of them will never be entirely well.

Like all diseases, the quicker the doctor sees it the better it can be handled. There is nothing to cause widespread terror, but the slightest illness of any kind should be reported to the doctor. His word that the disease is not present in the child will be a great comfort; and if there is any danger of spinal trouble, the chances for recovery are multiplied many times by speedy attention.

EUROPE INVESTING IN AMERICA.

The continued rise of the American stock market, almost regardless of current dividends, has puzzled many observers. Granting that general business conditions in this country were sound and the outlook good, they could not understand where all the money came from, and why it came.

Now comes at least a partial explanation. Europe as well as America has been buying American stocks. "During my visit to our Paris office" says the head of a Wall Street firm, "I was amazed at the eagerness of the French investors to purchase our securities. They are doing it because they consider, even at present prices, the yields on dividends now being paid are liberal. The average Frenchman is satisfied with 4 per cent if there is combined with this a reasonable speculative possibility."

The French are handicapped in such investment by the capital tax which makes it expensive to ship cash out of the country to buy foreign securities; and yet they buy. French investments of this sort in the last year are said to run up into hundreds of millions of francs. European investment trusts, too, in various countries have been heavy buyers of American common stocks. "European opinion," says the same banker, "is that the American stock market is going to be strong with a rising tendency for some time to come."

Here is an interesting reversal of the situation that has prevailed since the war until recently. Americans have been investing billions abroad. Now Europe is investing here. Our people will feel like thanking Europeans for their confidence and congratulating them on having the money.

GETTING TO SLEEP.

This business of being unable to sleep may become very serious at times, and as mentioned before, an organization is now devoting its energies toward the investigation of the nature of sleep.

Although most individuals who suffer with insomnia or sleeplessness really get more sleep than they think they do, nevertheless sleep, good restful sleep, is just as necessary to life as food.

There are different kinds of insomnia. Some individuals are very light sleepers, and any little noise or irritation will wake them. Others find difficulty in getting to sleep when they retire. They will twist and toss for one, two or three hours, before they finally get off to sleep. Others will get off to sleep at 11 or 12 o'clock at night, but will awaken about 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning, and find themselves unable to go off again.

Someone has said that this wakefulness is due to the fact that as the person is alone, in the dark, and everything quiet, that little feelings and sensations that he wouldn't notice in the day time, when he is active or busy with his work, now assume larger proportions.

For instance, he is aware of the beating of his heart, his skin feels itchy, perhaps he has a slight uneasiness in the stomach or intestine. Now there is no question but that if one is to get to sleep, there must be no intensive thinking. As mentioned before, mental defectives sleep well, because not having the usual brain capacity, they do not think much, they are not "interested", and so not being interested they have nothing to keep them awake.

Worry is a great cause of wakefulness, not only because the individual is interested, but because worry interferes with all the body functions, including stomach and intestine, with resulting uneasiness there.

Now although we do not know the exact nature of sleep, there is no question but that there are some simple methods of helping to induce sleep. The bed should be "comfortable", the temperature of the room should be right, with adequate ventilation, and quietness obtained if at all possible. The one idea is to get relaxation. As you watch a sleeper you notice the absolute "ease" of his whole body.

Similarly you should lie down with knees and arms slightly bent, and just imagine you are very tired, breathing slowly and deeply, as though completely exhausted.

Broadie at Ithaca.

Frederick J. Broadie of this city has registered at the Ithaca Conservatory and Affiliated Schools for a course in the Ithaca Conservatory of Music which is one of the Affiliated schools in this Institution. He will study under the celebrated authority Stefan Sopkin. Upon completion of the required course of study, Mr. Broadie will receive a B. M. Degree.

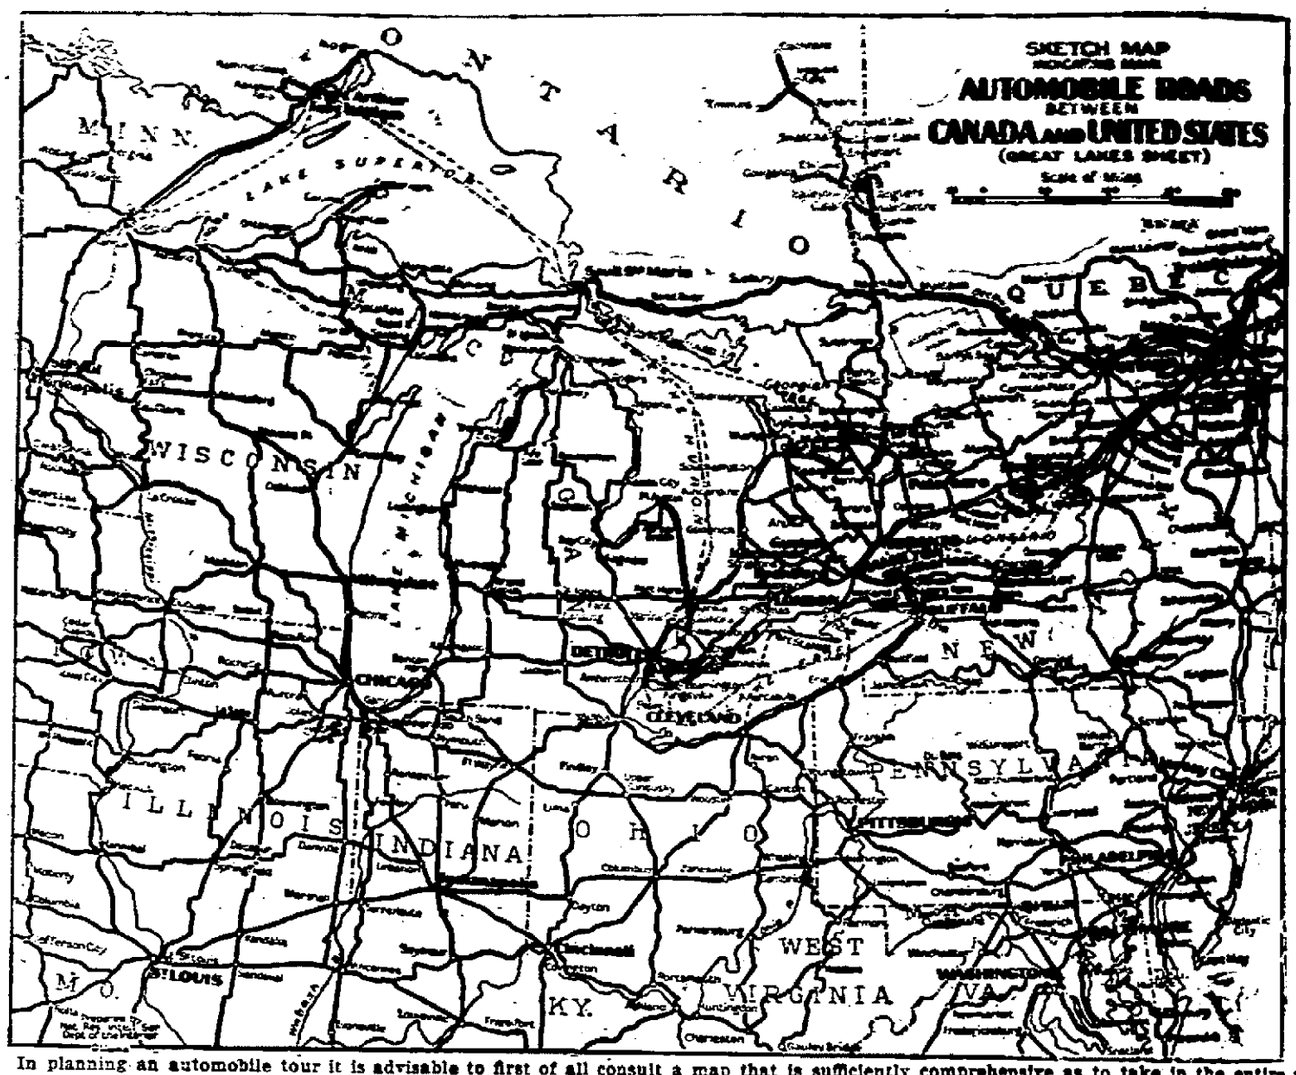
International Highway Map



In planning an automobile tour it is advisable to first of all consult a map that is sufficiently comprehensive as to take in the entire territory within reasonable touring distance of the starting point and also one that shows the principal automobile highways, so that in a general way a route may be selected, and an itinerary planned.

The above map fills this need particularly and in a very practical fashion. The trunk highways of the northern states and of Canada and their connecting points are clearly shown. This is probably the only map that so clearly shows the relationship between the highway systems of the two countries and with such an absence of unessential detail. Its usefulness to those who may be planning a vacation or business tour in either or both countries will at once be apparent.

Copies of the original map in colors, also copies showing other sections of the two countries may be secured without charge upon application through the Automobile Editor of this paper. Four sheets in all are available as follows:

Atlantic Sheet.
Great Lakes Sheet,
Middle West Sheet,
Pacific Sheet.

A general map of the whole international border is also published.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE QUARREL

Nick and Nancy had been feeding crumbs to the birds every day for some time.

"I fancy they enjoy them pretty well, don't they?" said Daddy.

"Yes, they love them," replied Nancy.

"Do they ever scrap over who shall get a crumb first?" added Daddy.

"No," said Nick, "they don't seem to. They really are very cunning, and they seem to be very friendly and get along beautifully."

"Well, you know," said Daddy, "the other day I saw some birds having an awful fight.

"One little sparrow had found a very big crumb and was trying to keep it all to himself."

"Sparrows are supposed to be rather fond of fighting, aren't they, Daddy?" asked Nick.

"They do seem to be considerable crosser and to have more cranky natures than other birds.

"But perhaps it is because they are always around us, and they never have a quarrel that we don't see it.

"But really, we ought to be grateful to the sparrows, for we have them always with us, even when other birds are not fond of our weather, or even in the city in the winter time."

"Yes, that's true," said Nancy. "And they're plucky little creatures, too, never minding bad weather, not even the very worst.

"But do tell us more about the fight, Daddy."

"Another little sparrow," continued Daddy, "was furious when he saw the selfishness of the first sparrow.

"He completely lost his temper. He flew at the first little sparrow and hit him with his wings just as hard as ever he could.

"Then a number of sparrows came and joined in the fight. Some took the side of the first sparrow and some of the second sparrow.

"It really might have been quite a serious battle had not an old sparrow stepped in and pitched his voice way up in the air.

"He simply shrieked at the sparrows.

"'Stop! Stop at once!' he cried.

"All the sparrows stopped at once, for they were very much afraid of the old sparrow.

"He was quite their leader, and, though he was a very jolly old soul and would enter into all their sports, still he was quite strict.

"'Aren't you ashamed of yourselves, all of you,' he continued—'you, little first sparrow, for being so selfish, and, little second one, for losing your temper, and the rest of you for joining in?'

"And all the little sparrows hung their heads in shame, and they then and there promised the old sparrow that they would never again be greedy and selfish nor would they fight.

"The old sparrow then looked very much relieved, for it always made him very unhappy when the sparrows were naughty."

Wouldn't Imitate a Girl

Jack had woven a small mat and gave it to his mother for a gift. When he gave it to her she thanked him and was looking it over. Thinking she did not look much pleased, he said, "Well, don't you like it, mother?"

"Yes, Jack, I do like it, but it seems to me you might have made it a little more neatly."

Jack replied, "You see I didn't want it to look as though a girl had made it."

Cutting Out Slang

Kenneth, aged three, had been cautioned constantly about picking up the slang used by his older brothers. One day he went to the kitchen cupboard for something and accidentally tipped a glass of jelly on the floor, making a great mess.

That night when his father asked him about it he explained, "I fought (thought) 'gosh' and I fought 'darn,' but I said 'My doodness.'"

No Head to Class

"Who headed the class today, Freddy?" asked his mother of a seven-year-old.

"Oh, there was no head today, mother. They all followed their leader and I was wrong."

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Saturday, October 1.

The Ponce Sisters, recording and vaudeville harmonists, will provide the first outstanding radio attraction Saturday night at 8:00 through WJZ. One half hour later WHAM will join the New York station in microphoning the Mediterraneans' Dance Band in popular music with vocal solos by Juan Pulido, Spanish baritone. At the same time WEAF, WEEI, WTIC, WGR and WGY will present the weekly feature "Old Gold on Broadway" which will continue until 11:00. The Percy Ensemble Club will be heard from WBZ at 8:30 in a classical program. Philadelphia stations will provide the nine o'clock highlights. WIP will radiate the American Legion Glee Club and WFI, a program of Negro spirituals. Entertainment from the Chicago Radio Show is scheduled to start from WLS at midnight.

Works Both Ways

Any time a friend or neighbor outstrips us in making money we can assume a moral superiority, say "money is not the most important thing in the world," and hint that he is losing his soul through worship of the dollar. If we happen to succeed better than he, we can let him have the same consoling thought.—Pathfinder Magazine.

PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS ALL OVER FACE
Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement
Munden, Va., Aug. 5:—"Awhile ago I began to be troubled with enlarged pores and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even boils. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and unsightly I was ashamed of it. I tried about everything to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Resinol Ointment and Soap so highly recommended for troubles like mine, I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. I advise everybody with skin trouble to try Resinol." (Signed) Miss Hazel Beasley.

Activities at The High School

Tuesday was again bank day at Kingston High School and 421 students deposited. This large number of depositors brought the school per cent up to 53, which is the largest it has ever been.

Rooms 11, 39 and 37 secured 100 per cent. Room 28 was second with 96 per cent. Hall A was third with 94 per cent. Other honor rooms are: Room 10, 71 per cent; Room 29, 70 per cent; Room 31, 69 per cent; Room 33, 59 per cent; Room 24, 57 per cent, and Room 6, 55 per cent.

The increase in banking at the high school is encouraging to the directors in charge and if the banking reports continues as good as the first two weeks are, the officials will be satisfied.

A. A. Drive Moving Slowly.

The K. H. S. A. A. drive is progressing slowly at the high school. Nearly 500 cards have been issued so far and it is hoped that K. H. S. will have at least 500 members before the drive stops. The spirit of rivalry which was present at previous A. A. drives seems to be lacking.

Two rooms have reported 100 per cent membership. They are 14 and 11.

A. A. Election.

The annual A. A. election was held in Hall A Thursday. John Watts was elected president; Ann Herzog, vice president, and Burt Van Deusen, secretary.

Letter Club Election.

The Letter Club has also organized for this year. Paul Joyce was elected president; Phil Jones, vice president, and Lauren Lasher, secretary.

Hi-Y Reception.

The Hi-Y Club gave the K. H. S. faculty and their husbands a reception at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening.

The faculty and students were met at the door and given cards containing their name. These were pinned to the person and formed an identification mark for the evening.

The students escorted the faculty to the educational rooms where a banquet was served by the Hi-Y Auxiliary assisted by the Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

Homer Brown said grace after which the Alma Mater was sung by the assemblage. During the meal a three piece orchestra consisting of Mr. Stine, violin; Jay Molyneaux, saxophone, and Genoviere Main at the piano, rendered several selections which were enjoyed as was the violin solo by Mr. Stine and vocal solos by Mr. Paul and Zaven Melik.

Mr. Van Ingen told the members that the faculty enjoyed and appreciated the banquet and ended by assuring them that he would be there if the reception was repeated this year.

John Watts led devotions after which Dr. Michael, superintendent of schools, spoke on "Faculty and Student, a working team." He said that one of the first qualifications of a teacher should be ability to cooperate with the students and not how much they knew about the subject. That the teachers were interested in cooperating with the students was manifested by the large number of faculty members present.

Hi-Y Officers.

The officers of Hi-Y are: John Thompson, president; Lauren Lasher, vice president, and Loomis Myers, secretary-treasurer.

MARLBOROUGH

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Haviland spent Wednesday in New York city.

Miss Kathryn Cumiskey and Miss Grace Lockwood, who are attending the New Paltz Normal School spent the week end at their homes here.

Mrs. Joseph Tierney and little son of Newburgh spent the week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Barry.

Mr. and Mrs. John DuBois and Mrs. Walter Rann and daughter, Mrs. Galbreath, attended the World's Radio Show in New York city the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haddon and family of Newburgh spent Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newell.

"See You in Jail" will be seen at the Advance Theatre, Marlborough, Thursday evening and "The Big Parade" will be shown here Saturday evening, October 1.

The guests of Mrs. Calvin Wygant, Jr., the past week were her mother, Mrs. Ernest Cole of Hampton N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Noyes and daughter, Marjorie of Portsmouth, N. H.

Mrs. Walter Betts and two little daughters left this week for Long Island where they will spend the winter.

The guests of Mrs. Robert Conn over the week end were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Laydon of Hooker, N. J., Mrs. Mullins, Fred Weber and daughter of New York city and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Reese of New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Rolson and family of Queens Village, L. I., spent the week end with Mrs. Robson's mother, Mrs. F. W. Schramm.

Mrs. Dewitt Van Vliet of Richmond Hill, L. I., is spending two weeks at Shady Brook Farm.

The shipment of fruit from this place is steadily increasing. Wednesday there were 2,500 baskets shipped from the Central Hudson dock. About twelve fruit trucks also left for New York the same day.

An Athletic Association was organized in Marlborough High School by the new physical director, Mr. Russack. The officers of the association are: Michael Berkery, president; Jack Conn, vice president; Lawrence Wardell, secretary; D. D. Taylor, treasurer; and Lilly Benjamin, publicity agent. The formation of the Athletic Association is considered an important factor in the conducting of the school.

Mrs. M. C. Carell, wife of the Presbyterian pastor, will be the speaker at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting on October 11, at the home of Mrs. Neil Eckerson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Fowler recently visited Mr. Fowler's brother of Beacon.

Girl Scout Growth In Union States

Convention Delegates Hear How Scout Activities Have Increased—Organization Has Over 200,000 Members—Some Recent Notable Gifts.

New York Sept. 29.—Expanding membership, increasing public interest, and improved facilities for camping and instruction in leadership, were outstanding topics covered in committee reports rendered today to the Girl Scouts, Inc., at their Thirteenth Annual Convention at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Gains in the actual Girl Scout membership continued steadily. In 1924, the Girl Scouts registered approximately nine girls in every 1,000. In 1925 the registrations per 1,000 had advanced to eleven, and in 1926, they were thirteen. The Great Lakes Region led the country in consistent gains for the two years.

During the last year, Girl Scout activities have been taken to 791 communities which never before had them. There were 2,215 new troops.

A gratifying and "astounding" increase was reported in the "community sponsor group", including council members, community committees, and troop committees. While this class increased 11.4 per cent in 1925 as compared with 1924, it showed a 32.1 per cent increase for 1926.

The camp committee reported the establishment of 120 new camps throughout the country.

"A Girl Scout camp is the greatest single venture which a council, committee or captain undertakes," it was declared.

All told, 359 official camps reported to the national committee. More than 20,000 Girl Scouts and more than 3,000 camp leaders spent at least two weeks at these camps. Additional facilities are hoped for, so that in the near future, fifty per cent or more of the membership may be offered camping under the organization's auspices.

Outstanding gifts of the year were a $125,000 bequest for the development of Girl Scout camping in Massachusetts; the donation of the 157 acre Ezra Cornell farm to the Ithaca Council, for the Ann Rotsford Comstock Nature Camp; a $35,000 gift to the Indianapolis Council from a former Girl Scout Lieutenant, now a student at Mt. Holyoke, for a 142 acre camp site and buildings; and an $11,000 donation to the Dallas, Texas, Girl Scouts, by the Kiwanis Club for the development of their camp site.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WATCHING THE CLOCK

HOW far back the measurement of times goes is lost in the unrecorded events of prehistoric times. It is altogether probable that early man reckoned the passage of time by the length of shadows cast on the ground and later perhaps an instrument similar to the hour glass served to measure the divisions of the day.

Certain it is that clocks as we know them were not invented until the Ninth century and the credit for the idea is given to a man of Verona named Pacificus.

Like all things mortal the clock had faults as well as virtues. Before the hours were automatically measured for him man worked until he was tired and then "called it a day." With the coming of the clock he began measuring his efforts by time and acquired the habit of "watching the clock."

There is one certain thing; no creature not endowed with more than two eyes can watch his job and the clock at the same time.

When a man is looking at a clock his sole interest is the answer to the question, "What time is it?"

The most efficient office in Washington during the war was one particular division of the Navy department. In that big room there was neither a calendar nor a clock.

The head of that bureau said to the writer: "I do not want any one here who cares what day it is or what time it is. The measure of a day here is the finishing of the work in hand, then we can all go home."

No truly in-earnest worker was ever able to quite finish his day's task. There always remains some portion upon which he would like to spend a little longer time.

The reason the not-in-earnest worker watches the clock is because his heart is not in his labors and his pride is not in their results.

Don't be a clock watcher. Work while you work with so much energy, so much interest, so much intensity that time doesn't matter.

Play when you play with so much abandon, so much enjoyment, so much enthusiasm that the day passes without your measurement.

The man who measures time in cycles or circles is wrong.

Time must be computed in a straight line along which there is no backward motion.

You can never have yesterday again. If you wasted it, try and make today do double duty. But you can't do that if you watch the clock.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

AT 21:—Lee Shubert Did Not Own One Theater.

AT THIS time my brother, Sam, and I were managing road companies. It was almost impossible then for independent managers to get a house in which to play for even one night, the theaters being controlled by a syndicate, and we soon ran up against this snag. All the best theaters were closed to us, so we got hold of old, run-down places and fixed them up as well as we could. We rented halls, anything we could find, so we could play our companies.—Lee Shubert.

TODAY:—As if destiny had played a designing hand in the case, the Shuberts own and direct more theaters in this country than anyone else in the theatrical profession, and have the greatest theatrical organization in the world.

The Shuberts are also the producers of numerous plays and musical pieces every year, among them such almost institutional productions as the Winter Garden shows.

Local Soldiers In Celebration

Local Unit of 156th Field Artillery to Participate in Sesqui Celebration at Newburgh—October 12 Big Day in Hilly City.

The local unit of the 156th Field Artillery will participate in the sesquicentennial celebration to be observed at Newburgh on Columbus Day, October 12, together with contingents from Poughkeepsie, Middletown, Peekskill and Mt. Vernon. The soldiers will be transported in motor busses to the Hilly City, where a gala day will be spent parading, banqueting, observing enacted battles of the war for independence and a gorgeous array of fireworks in the evening.

The committee in charge of staging the celebration of the sesquicentennial in Newburgh has made extensive plans to make the event of October 12 one of the biggest ever held in the community.

A parade will start at 9:30 a. m. It will be made up of units from the 156th Field Artillery, led by the band of that corps. The paraders will assemble at the Newburgh armory and will proceed through the principal streets of the city. The soldiers will be through parading about noon and a banquet will be served them in the armory.

The members of the 156th will be afforded the opportunity to witness the enacting of the battle of Fort Montgomery at Recreation Park, one of the principal encounters of the Colonial troops with the British and Hessians in the Revolution of '76. General Washington will be personified in command of the American forces, who will be dressed in the Continental uniforms.

The evening program will consist of a fireworks display, forecast to be more elaborate and beautiful than ever. One is held every Columbus Day by the Italian societies and this year their expenditures for the occasion have been augmented by appropriations from the sesqui committee which assures a gorgeous display. Just where the fireworks display will be held has not been decided but it is expected that either Recreation Park or a site along the Hudson river bordering the city will be designated.

After the evening program all units of the Field Artillery outside of Newburgh will be returned to their home communities. The entire expense of the celebration will be financed by the committee in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Post of Clermont street spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Millard Carle in Troy.

White Pearls in Demand

Pearls that come from the coast of Australia are of many shapes and colors. Those under ten grains are sold by the ounce; above that by the grain. Color has a deal to do with the value. The white pearls go mostly to Europe and the yellow one's to India. In Australia an ounce of good white pearls will fetch up to $500, but sometimes realize only a fifth of that amount. The yellow pearls may be rated on an average of about half the value of the white ones.

Yellow Jackets, The Undefeated, Have Made Good

Local Football Team Has a Record That It Can Be Proud Of—Virtually the Same Squad Will Take The Field This Season.

The Yellow Jackets official representatives of Kingston on the gridiron will go into combat against the Rhode Island Professionals Sunday at the Fair Grounds with a record of which any collegiate or professional eleven would be proud to be the makers. The 1926 players were warriors and proved their ability and mettle by not losing a game which is the goal of the '27 pigskin toilers.

Captain Lee Hasbrouck led his gridders against the Beacon eleven at Beacon for the locals' debut last year and it was a most successful one. The Yellow Jackets emerged the victors by a 20-0 score which was a wonderful start. During their period on the gridiron they collected an aggregate of 149 points against 19 for their opponents. The total number of games played by the Yellow Jackets was nine.

The Record.

Yellow Jackets 20, Beacon 0, at Beacon.

Yellow Jackets 10, West Point Artillery 7, at West Point.

Yellow Jackets 36, Poughkeepsie 0, at Poughkeepsie.

Yellow Jackets 26, Beacon 0, at Kingston.

Yellow Jackets, 19, Poughkeepsie 0, at Kingston.

Yellow Jackets, 0, West Chester A. A. 0, at Kingston.

Yellow Jackets 7, West Point Service team 3, at Kingston.

Yellow Jackets 19, Bear Cat A. C. 0, at Kingston.

Yellow Jackets 12, Middletown Wolves 0, at Kingston.

A Scoreless Tie.

Out of the nine contests there was but one tie score. It was registered in the battle with the West Chester A. C. at the Fair Grounds and produced plenty of thrills for the fans. The lowest score turned out by the Yellow Jackets was in their set-to with the West Point Service eleven against whom they tallied seven points while the soldiers succeeded in corralling but three. Their zenith mark in point collecting was reached in the tilt with the Poughkeepsie gridders at the Bridge City field. The local copped the bacon by scoring 36 markers against a blank score for the Poughkeepsie.

Six of the nine games played by the Yellow Jackets last season were staged at the Fair Grounds and it is the intention of Manager Bill Dwyer to play as many games in Kingston this season as possible. The local fans will be given every opportunity to witness their team in contests with the best elevens procurable. The Yellow Jackets are not members of any league this year and for this reason will be able to arrange games with fast teams.

The Yellow Jackets are working had to put forth the best possible efforts against the Rhode Island Professionals Sunday afternoon and Captain McLane will take the field with an aggregation of well drilled men.

Jeff to Preach Creed of Boxing for Youths

Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight champion, in a boxing pose and a close-up showing how little the years have changed him. He's going to spread doctrine of athletics and clean living all over the land.

(International Newsreel)

BY JACK Y. KEENE

International Illustrated News Sports Editor

New York (I-I-N).—Jim Jeffries has administered a kayo to rumors that he would follow the footsteps of Billy Sunday and become an evangelist.

"But I'm going to be a preacher, just the same," says the wonderful old ex-heavyweight champion.

"Not a preacher of religion—but a preacher of the doctrine of clean living and exercise.

"I'm going to broadcast all over the country and tell parents the value of boxing as a means toward bringing up their boys as fine and strong citizens.

"I'm going to try to put a set of boxing gloves in every home in the United States.

"It's the greatest thing in the world for keeping you fit. If people only realized how simple it is to become healthy and stay healthy, we'd have a nation that would set a pace for the rest of the world."

The grizzled warrior was asked what his rules are. They are brief and simple, and here they are:

1. Exercise regularly.
2. Eat regularly.
3. Sleep regularly.

Jeff has a large and comfortable ranch in California and has fitted out a ring for the boys of the neighborhood. After preaching health he'll go back home and rest up from his lab[illegible]

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press.)

Baseball interest was divided today between Babe Ruth's effort to establish a new home run record and the closing maneuvers in the National League race, where the Pittsburgh Pirates need only one more victory to clinch the flag, although St. Louis and New York are not altogether out of the running.

Ruth yesterday tied his 1921 record of 59 home runs when he belted the ball out of the stadium in the fifth inning of the Washington game, which New York won, 15-4. The bases were loaded at the moment and Paul Hopkins, a recruit, was pitching. Ruth's fifty-eighth circuit smash came in the first inning with the bases empty and Horace Lisenbee on the mound.

More than 20,000 fans jumped to their feet and acclaimed the Babe as his fifty-ninth soared over the right field wall. In the seventh Ruth caromed the ball off the right field wall for a triple and in the ninth he drove a towering fly to right which came down a few feet inside the playing field and into a fielder's hands.

The captain of the home run industry has two more games to play against Washington and is confident he will get his sixtieth homer before the curtain is rung down on the American League season.

Much of the tenseness in the National League passed out yesterday when Cincinnati clapped on a 3-2 beating to the St. Louis Cardinals. With Pittsburgh players in the stands the Reds got to Frankhouse, Texas League recruit, for all their runs in the fourth. Aside from that inning, Frankhouse, who had won his first five starts in fast company, was well nigh invincible.

If either New York or St. Louis is to get into the running the Pirates must drop all three games at Cincinnati. Should that highly improbable upset occur and the Giants win their three games and the Cards win the two they have left to play, all three teams would be in a final tie. National League rules require that in such an event a series of nine games must be played to determine the winner. That would hold up the world series for ten days or longer.

Two other games were played yesterday in the majors. In the American, Philadelphia ran up against a tartar in Beadly, Eastern League recruit, who pitched the Boston Red Sox to a 6-1 victory. The Mackmen obtained only five hits. Cantrell was nicked 14 times.

The Philadelphia Nationals romped over the Boston Braves, 7-1. Kent Greenfield was ineffective, the Quakers pounding him for 13 hits and seven runs in the first seven innings. Ray Miller, young pitcher from Syracuse, kept his hits scattered.

Yankee Twirlers For World Series

By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The "big four" of the Yankee twirling staff for the world series battle probably will consist of Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock, Urban Shocker and Wiley Moore, the "sinker ball" expert.

This is the expectation of Miller Huggins, diminutive pilot of the American League champions, but he hasn't determined what order he will work his hurlers, nor is he likely to commit himself to any set program.

"That's the way it looks," Huggins explained in an interview with the Associated Press, "but neither you nor I can say what the play will develop. The first game might upset my whole program. I haven't decided on a starting pitcher."

But the experts, speculating on probabilities, regard Pennock, the veteran southpaw, or Hoyt, as the likely opening game choice.

The selection of Wiley Moore to shoulder a regular share in the mound burden shoves Dutch Ruether and Bob Shawkey, two veterans of world series combat, into the background. Unless there are unexpected developments, they are likely to remain in the reserve corps, along with George Pipgras and Myles Thomas.

Moore is one of Huggins's 1927 developments. The South Carolina recruit, excelling most of the season in relief roles, has been taking a regular turn in the box and displaying excellent form.

PAN-AMS PLAY TWO GAMES HERE SUNDAY.

The U. and D. Baseball Club under the management of Joe Long will be the attraction of the Pan-Ams Sunday afternoon in a doubleheader. Both games will be played on the Saugerties road diamond. The first game to start at 2 o'clock. Both teams are practicing hard for these contests and it is expected that a record crowd will be on hand to see these two well known clubs battle. The U. and D. is one of the fastest clubs that Manager McNally has booked for his Pan Ams this season and to take both games from Manager Long's outfit is a task that many teams wouldn't want to try. Manager Long of the U. and D. will have three twirlers ready for action Sunday. Walt Black, Dick Williams, who is noted for his speed, and Phil Peters with Hank Smedes behind the plate. In Johnny Celuch, Paul Joyce and Johnny Carpenter, the Pan-Ams boast of one of the best pitching staffs in this section. And with these three slab artists in form the Pan-Ams are a hard team to beat. The backstop work will be taken care of by Jack O'Neil and Chester.

Major Elevens In Action Saturday

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Finishing touches were being added today to hundreds of college football teams on the eve of a big opening drive that finds practically all of the major elevens in action, along with a myriad of smaller institutions, some of which are looking for prestige and glory at the early season expense of more formidable opposition.

With a more or less uncertain outlook, Harvard swings into action tomorrow against the University of Vermont. Yale launches its 1927 campaign, the last under "Tad" Jones's regime, against Bowdoin. Princeton, with exceptionally fine prospects, engages Amherst.

Pennsylvania makes its second appearance of the season by taking on Swarthmore. Dartmouth, devoting much time to the aerial game in practice, opposes Hobart. Syracuse, still experimenting with its line, is ready for William and Mary. The Army, with a powerful string of regulars but only average reserve material, anticipates a forward pass barrage from Detroit University. Navy, with many new faces in the lineup, is expected to send a powerful eleven on the field against Davis and Elkins. Brown University, with eight of the 11 "Iron Men" of 1926 back, will play host to Albright.

Cornell, after a strenuous practice program that has embraced two sessions daily, takes on Niagara to test out the effect of Gilmour Doble's lessons. Lafayette has been working out a defense for Muhlenberg and Colgate is set for a game with St. Lawrence.

CLERMONTS HOPE TO BOOK SUNDAY GAME.

Manager John Hotaling of the Clermont is in hopes that he will be able to book a game with some local nine for a Sunday game at Hasbrouck Park. A game with either the Blue Sox or the Guldy All-Stars is especially desired and managers of these outfits may arrange with the Clermonts for an encounter. Should the Clermonts fail in an effort to book a local team for Sunday it is probable that the nine may play at Sawkill, the home grounds of the Robins, to whom they issue a challenge.

ALL-STARS AT BLOCK PARK SUNDAY.

The Rondout A. C. and the Kingston All-Stars will clash at Block Park Sunday and the Seventh Ward play-ground is expected to be crowded for the event. The aggregations will play two games, the first at 1:30 with a ten minutes' intermission before the nightcap. Dewey Van Buren and Hank Cragen will do the hurling for the All-Stars with Jack Robins, Colonial catcher, behind the plate. Phil Peters and Ken Best will be the box-men for the Rondouts with Dulin on the receiving end.

Gene Tunney Tells Boys Right Road to Success

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, broke his characteristic silence at Dayton, Ohio, recently and told some 5,000 news carriers the way to success.

Climbing from a marine who fought for $30 a month to the gentleman of the ring with a million-dollar valuation on his services, Gene Tunney's admonition appeared to register.

The first bit of advice he gave was not to smoke, because, he said, smoking kills the appetite and three square meals a day are absolutely necessary to proper development.

"Early to bed" was Tunney's second tip.

"Never take a drink of alcoholic liquor," was the next in line.

Fourth in his catechism was this: "Don't use profane language. It's a vulgarity for cowards only."

And lastly: "Have the will to win and you'll win."

Ping-Pong Boom Strikes England

Ping-pong, which has owed its return to favor in England to the lawn-tennis boom in recent years, has been given another boost.

It is now approved by the British royal family, and the most recent acquisition of Master George Lascelles, elder son of Princess Mary Viscountess Lascelles, only daughter of the king and queen, is a ping-pong set.

There are no royal children—that is George, his brother Gerald, and little Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the duke and duchess of York—yet of an age for outdoor sports, and ping-pong has been a popular indoor pastime with the royal family for some time.

Time Hasn't Dimmed His Ferocious Batting Eye

Ping Bodie was one of the first of the modern sluggers. He broke into Coast league baseball from the San Francisco sand lots around 1909 and his hitting, even in those days of an unlively ball, made him famous at once. He was sold to the Chicago White Sox in 1911 and played with them until the season of 1915, when the Sox sent him back to the Seals. Ping promptly set a new Coast league home-run record with 32 homers. The Sox lost no time in taking him back in 1916, and he remained in the big leagues until three or four years ago, when he was with Vernon for a season. Ping had retired until recently, when he decided to try it again with his old love, the Seals. And, although the old gentleman has slowed up a bit on his dogs, he can still catch any fly he can reach, and he can still plunk the ball with any of 'em. A rollicking, jovial, rustling, hustling out-to-win player of the old school is Ping Bodie.

Photo shows Jack Leroy Levy, Jewish pitcher with the Charlotte (N. C.) team, who was purchased by John McGraw of the New York Giants for a reputed price of $10,000. Levy has been going great guns in the South, and is considered one of the best young hurlers brought up from there in many years.

JACK PREPARES LONG CAMPAIGN

Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor, snapped on return to New York after that "long-count" fight at Chicago. Dempsey expects to meet four or five heavyweight contenders and then insist on a third crack at the studious Mr. Tunney next year. Closeup shows scars of battle on Jack's face.

England has still another hopeful. Phil Scott and his manager left Southampton expecting to fight Jack Sharkey or Jimmy Maloney in New York City.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Static ebbed and flowed and so did the volume of most stations Thursday evening. WGY, WJZ, WABC and WBZ were the best stations. The west was dead until a late hour, when WCBD, WJR, WLW and a few others whispered and muttered. The static, if it was really static, growled in a peculiar manner. At 9 o'clock it was raging and at 9:40 it abruptly ceased, only to resume again at 10 accompanied by fading.

WGY is doing stunts again. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon muffled sounds that seemed a pick-up of the WOR program was heard from Schenectady.

The Eskimo dogs barked best from WGY and WEAF.

His Patience Ended

When asked by a firm for a bank reference, a customer replied: "I don't deal with any banks now, as in the past they have returned so many of my checks."

RETAIN LOVE OF HUNTING FOXES

Ozark Pioneers Train Their Dogs Not to Harm Small Animals.

Springfield, Mo.—Fox hunting, picturesque sport of the pioneers, is enlisting new devotees in the Ozarks through annual summer fox hunts and picnics being held by several county fox hunters' associations.

Choosing a pleasant camping ground on a wooded hillside near a spring in the midst of territory known to harbor foxes, the hunters usually devote four days to the meet.

Recently the Dade county Fox Hunters' association went into camp and later the Cedar county hunters gathered for the annual event.

Fox hunting always has been followed by lovers of the outdoor sports of the Ozarks, who kept from one to half a dozen of the ungainly fox-hounds, which they prized highly and at which many shafts of wit have been aimed in the past by visitors to the hills. It is only in the last eight or ten years, however, that the hunters have fallen into the universal organization habit so far as to form associations with duly elected officers.

Fox hunting really is fox chasing—with the hope that the prey will not be caught. Strange as it may seem, fox hunters are the best of friends the little animals have. They want the foxes protected that their dogs may have many chases in the future.

Unlike fox hunting in England, where the country is not so covered by underbrush and wooded hills, the Ozark sport is not carried on by following the hounds on horseback. Instead, the hunters get their thrills by listening to the tumultuous chorus of baying dogs racing after the fox as it moves in a wide circle.

About nightfall the hunters leave the camp and go to a spot near where they know there is a fox den. They usually have one or two "starting dogs" which know the region and soon can get up the fox. Then the other dogs are unleashed and the race is on. The hunters choose a high knoll where they can hear from all directions and which is as nearly as possible in the center of the circle being run by the fox and dogs.

If it is cold weather they build a bonfire. As they listen to the babel of baying they know the hounds well enough to tell how closely they are pressing the fox. They know which dog is in the lead and whether the hounds are confused in the trail. They know, also, if the dogs are "running fair," and woe be to one which cuts across the circle and tries to head the fox off. Hunters don't like a dog which won't "run fair."

The hunters may never even glimpse the fox nor the dogs after the chase begins, for the circle in which they run may be five or even ten miles around. If the dogs start pressing the fox too closely it will run into a hole. Then the hunters call the dogs off and the race is over. Often the race lasts for five or six hours, or even longer.

If the fox strays into an open space where the dogs are certain to catch it, the hunters try to call the hounds in with long blasts of their horns. It is inevitable that sometimes the dogs do catch the fox, but this is always regretted by the hunters.

In fox hunting, as in every other activity of the Ozark region, the modern day ushered in by good roads has been reflected. Instead of riding to camp on mules or horses, as they once did, most hunters drive up in their automobiles with their prized fox hounds occupying the back of the cars.

During the day at the annual encampments the entertainment includes a drag race, baseball game, horseshoe pitching and the like.

Drag Race in Morning.

The drag race is held early each morning for women and children who cannot attend the fox race at night. Before the dew has gone, a man leaves camp on horseback dragging behind him a wet wolf hide. He travels about five miles in a circle, returning to a point near the camp. Then he lifts the wolf hide as a signal that here the race ends. The young dogs are used in this race, for the hunters want to save their best hounds for the evening chase.

The dogs are unleashed on the trail made by the horseman. Away they go with many excited yelps and never stop until they have made the complete circuit and returned to the camp where the trail ends. The dog which makes the trip first has won the race.

The foxes in this section of the Ozarks where the hunts are being held at present are mostly red foxes. Other regions have more gray foxes. The red foxes are the fastest runners and also more timid. They run farther from the point at which the hunters are listening to the chase.

Another thing, when the dogs are chasing a red fox the hunters do not dare talk for fear of frightening it farther away. The gray foxes don't seem to mind if the hunters yell at the dogs occasionally, encouraging them, or spend the peaceful moonlit Ozark night telling of past exploits of their dogs—made more impressive by the accompaniment of deep baying in the distance.

Historic Farmhouse at Saratoga

Albany, Sept. 30.—When the battle of Saratoga was planned by military officers in September 150 years ago, the old Neilson farmhouse, part of which is still in existence, was used as a headquarters and the barn nearby improvised as a fort. It was located on a hill about one mile above Bemis Heights and here Generals Poor, Learned, Morgan, Kosciuscko, Arnold and others led out the left wing which is given credit for having won the battle.

The accompanying photograph was made more than half a century ago and the rear part of the old farmhouse was standing during the conflict and was never captured by the British, although in defending it over a thousand American soldiers died in the field just across the present highway No. 30.

The part of the Neilson farmhouse dating back to 1777 has been restored and is know as General Poor's headquarters. It contains a museum collection of relics picked up about the battlefield.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Spencer Jones visited her sister, Mrs. Whittaker, in Pacama Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lifschitz are home from the Jewish New Year's celebration held at Kingston September 27.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kinney returned Monday for a visit with friends and relatives at Albany, Greenwich and Cambridge, New York.

Mrs. Charles Hogan and Mrs. John Davis and children spent Thursday with Mrs. Charles Davis.

Mrs. James Bush of Olive Bridge visited Mrs. Burton Christiana Wednesday.

KRIPPLEBUSH.

Kripplebush, Sept. 29.—The Sunday school picnic which was held September 16 was a success in every way. $134 was taken in, $62.44 was cleared. Thanks are extended to all who helped in any way to make it such a success, also the lodge for so kindly donating the lodge hall for the picnic.

Mrs. Ellen Owens has returned to her home in New Paltz after spending some time with her cousin, Mrs. Jane Vandemark.

The city people have all left for their city homes.

The Rev. George H. Cooley, pastor of the M. E. Church, is preaching a series of sermons on "The Ten Commandments." Next Sunday, October 2, at 2:30 he will speak on the Second Commandment. Everybody welcome. Sunday school, 1:30.

September has been a month of fine weather. No frost has been in this place.

LADIES' and MISSES' WEARING APPAREL

Fur Coats — Cloth Coats — Dresses—Skirts, Etc.

The dawn of a new season—and that season autumn! Every woman is asking, "What shall I wear?" As she turns from the flippant informality that is summer's to the more varied and defined requirements that belong to fall and winter, she will find her question fashionably answered in this early display of the mode for fall, 1927. A new note is struck in the fashions for this season—there's a decided trend toward formality and a freedom of motion about the new modes that indicates a very interesting attempt to break away from the tailored regime that has held sway for so many seasons.

Humane

John came running into his father's study with nose bleeding copiously, and, while first aid was being rendered, explained that he had received a blow from another boy.

"Well, did you hit him back?" inquired father.

"No, father, you see, he was smaller than me."

Father's heart warmed at such chivalry.

"And, besides, he was a poor boy—"

Father's face beamed at such magnanimity.

"And you can never tell what those poor boys can do."

The Past Is Present

What reply shall we make if our past can only whisper: "Your success has been wholly due to injustice and falsehood, wherefore it behooves you once more to deceive and to lie." No man cares to let his eyes rest on his acts of disloyalty, weakness, or treachery; and all the events of bygone days which we cannot contemplate calmly and peacefully, with satisfaction and confidence, trouble and restrict the horizon which the days that are not yet are forming far away.—Maeterlinck.

Gratitude

Missionaries are accustomed to receive some strange letters from natives. Here is a letter of gratitude which arrived a short time ago at a well-known medical mission hospital in India:

Dear and Fair Madam,—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearly unfortunate wife will no longer be under your care, she having left this world for the next on the night of the 27th ult. For your help in this matter I shall ever remain grateful.—Yours reverently.

Gold Didn't Materialize

A Chicago inventor named Brice, in 1897, was seeking a patent on a process for making gold from a mixture of antimony, iron and sulphur. The patent office would not grant it without proof that the idea had merit, and the then secretary of the treasury was persuaded to direct the mint bureau to try the thing out. There must have been something wrong about the methods of the treasury laboratory, for not a particle of gold or silver was obtained.

Shanghai Now Boasts Woman's Barber Shop

Shanghai.—A barber shop for Chinese women, the first of its kind in Shanghai, has been opened under the auspices of the Chinese Y. W. C. A.

According to the announcement of the opening of the new "shop," it has been made necessary "to meet the increasing demand on the part of Chinese women who have bobbed hair for woman barbers."

Two man barbers were retained when the shop first opened to train the woman barbers. They have since been replaced by women.

Not only are Chinese women patronizing the shop, but foreign women are finding it an excellent place to obtain barber service.

Saved by Fast Clock

Old Belief Wrong

There is no scientific foundation for the popular belief that the deeper the water the easier it is to swim in it. The buoyancy of water does not increase with the depth. It is just as easy to swim in water 10 feet deep as in water 100 feet in depth.

Eleanor Gunn Says

New York—The velvet handbag is naturally under discussion, since velvet hats are so confidently expected to return to favor.

Black reindeer and tinted sharkskin are among the several fashionable leathers, which also include tinted pigskin.

Skirts dip abruptly at front side, back, the back dip being preferred for evening.

The tweed handbag is a novelty reported from London.

Novelty sports hose are shown at the better class shops, the preference in design being toward diamond motifs, although stripes are also liked.

The velvet ensemble is a formidable fall entry, and fur is usually lavishly used for collar and band effects.

Skunk is expected to stage a comeback. Paris uses this sturdy pelt with excellent effect.

Deauville fashionables showed a marked preference for shoes that combined white with either black or brown.

At the Newport tennis matches, orchids, purples and garnets were impressive.

Tweed sports coats are among the most interesting autumn developments. Many are fashioned on Norfolk lines and are belted.

Signal favor is given Persian lamb trimmings and gray furs on black this season.

Broken Hem-lines Are Ever Present in Frocks—New Lelong Blue Finds Favor.

New York—The variable hemline may not, as the sketch attests, be extreme. It is important, though, for practically every really smart frock one comes across has, if not a dip or a flare, some sort of interruption to the otherwise even tenor of its ways. In this instance, the upward curving of the fold is repeated on what appears to be a separate bodice, although this is just one of the clever deceptions practised upon us at the moment by the designer.

This frock, like many others this season, is fashioned of wool crepe, but one may prefer to follow the line of least resistance and have it made of crepe satin, using both sides of the material, for season in and season out the contrast of dull and gloss seems to be approved. The black crepe satin dress is perhaps the most dependable dress in one's wardrobe. There is velvet for elegance, and wool for comfort and for novelty, but crepe satin expresses what most of us need in the way of a wearable and all around useful material.

Black Crepella Is Employed by Clair Soeurs in a One-Piece Frock Simulating the Two-Piece Theme, Which Is Belted in Red and Black Felt.

The new Lelong blue ranks high in color preference, with bronze shade and warm browns generally fitting in with Paton's now famous "one two and three" shades, best designated perhaps as wood browns. After all is said and done, black is perhaps the ranking favorite. This is certainly true of coats, although light furs frequently trim them, and is true also of hats, in spite of a furor over rather bright blues.

NO EVIDENCE OF REVENGE ON HEATED QUARREL

In inquest held by Coroner Dr. Mahlon H. Atkinson at Catskill Tuesday concerning the murder of William Steppes, colored, revealed no evidence concerning revenge or a heated quarrel between the dead man and David Roberts arrested on a charge of shooting Steppes.

Several witnesses, including officers of the law, gave testimony. It was brought out that Roberts had been drinking but was not very intoxicated at the time of the alleged shooting. Men held as eye-witnesses to the shooting testified that they knew Roberts said something before he fired a bullet into Steppes's head but could not understand the words which were uttered in a mumble.

Never Alone

The man who lives under an habitual sense of the divine presence keeps up a perpetual cheerfulness of temper, enjoys every moment the satisfaction of thinking himself in company with his dearest and best of friends. The time never lies heavy upon him: it is impossible for him to be alone.—Joseph Addison.

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder of tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, fatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

HELPFUL HINTS

If the feet are swollen, hot and sensitive as they are so apt to be when the housewife is much on her feet, bathe them in alcohol after giving them a good soaking in salt water.

The importance of well-fitting and comfortable shoes is vital. The habit of many women when the feet are tired and painful is to slip on old felt slippers. This is a most reprehensible habit as it only aggravates the trouble.

A heel should be large enough, even if high, to support the weight of the body.

Stockings should be long enough to avoid wrinkles and short enough to fit well and avoid joint trouble.

Many a backache, headache, fits of temper and bad nerves may be caused from poorly shod feet.

Change of shoes and hose twice daily helps the feet wonderfully. The shoes should be well aired and the hose perfectly dry before dressing the feet.

Use cold coffee or tea infusion for all kinds of ferns instead of water once a week, soaking the roots well.

Heat table salt very hot and fill the bottle; it will retain heat much longer than water, with no danger from leakage.

To keep a cake moist, cover with an icing while the cake is still warm; then put a jelly glass of water in the cake box. The air will be kept moist by the water and the cake will not dry. An apple is often used for this purpose.

To make a good temporary cement for any metal utensil, mix a little wood ashes with white of egg to make a thick paste. Put this over the hole and hold the utensil over the heat until the paste bakes.

Nitrate of soda is a good tonic for house plants that need it. Dissolve one teaspoonful in a quart of water and use it once a week to water the plants. This tonic will produce growth quickly in young healthy plants.

Chinese New Year

On the occasion of the new year the Chinese exchange the greeting, "Kung Hai Fat Tsoy," meaning "Congratulations; may you collect wealth." The word "tsing," meaning "hall," is repeated by them numerous times. During the celebration of the new year all secret societies and guilds, whose rivalry is often very bitter, declare a "Truce of the Gods," when no man may attack his brother. This is generally respected by both the hunter and the hunted, who are glad of a relief.

Movies Enter in Field of Medicine

Films Made Available to Teach Medicine and Surgery—Technique of Masters to Be Laid Bare Through Slow Motion Pictures.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Motion pictures to teach medicine and surgery are now a reality. Announcement of the entry of the motion picture into the field of medicine was made today by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, who said that the films would be made available through sale or rental to doctors, hospitals and nurses throughout the world.

The first two pictures of an extensive series being produced by the Eastman Kodak Company for the American College of Surgeons will be shown at the annual meeting of that body in Detroit October 3 to 7.

Study Famous "Touch".

The technique of the masters of surgery, the famous "touch" that is worth millions in life and usefulness, can not be studied at better than first hand, those interested maintain, for the microscope and the slow-motion picture will lay bare the secrets which the deftness of the surgeon's scalpel hand withholds from the observer's eye. Further, this technique will be preserved for posterity so that to the masters of tomorrow nothing will be lost of the work of their predecessors.

Two Pictures Prepared.

The two pictures prepared under the supervision of eminent men selected by the board on medical motion picture films of the American College of Surgeons are "Infections of the Hand" and "Nursing Our Neighbors." The first picture shows important methods of treating hands and is expected to be of great value to surgeons treating industrial injuries, frequently obviating the necessity of amputations. The picture on nursing is expected to bring to the most isolated hospitals knowledge of the most approved practices.

"These two pictures lead the way for an extraordinary motion picture course in surgery and medicine," said Hays, who is honorary chairman of the board on medical motion pictures. The other members are Drs. J. Bentley Squier, W. W. Chipman, Franklin Martin, Bowman Crowell, Malcolm MacEachern, C. H. Mayo and George W. Crile.

The Proposed Program.

The program prepared by the American College of Surgeons includes motion pictures on anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, embryology, surgery, fractures, cancer and operating room technique—experimental medicine health examinations, obstetrics, hygiene, sanitation, public health, neurology, approved hospital practice and nursing.

"Great care will be exercised," Hays said, "to prevent unethical exploitation of competitive practitioners and operators. It will be the effort of the board to present the highest skill in medicine, surgery and sanitation by the highest authorities."

Rabbit Dinner

While touring in northern Wisconsin one night two big rabbits ran into the road in front of my machine. They were blinded by the bright light from my headlights, and it was an easy matter to get out and catch them both. I had a good dinner the next day.—Exchange.

Ready to drop by noontime

SHE seemed to stay tired—her lightest task too heavy. . . . What was the matter? Why, she used to be full of life and energy! What had stolen her health—had sapped her strength?

Constipation takes awful toll from thousands of men and women. It thieves vitality. It wrecks energy. It destroys beauty and health itself, and often leads to serious disease. Yet it can be so easily relieved! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—safely and promptly.

ALL-BRAN vs. part-bran

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the intestines, gently distending them — purifying, removing poisonous wastes. How different from part-bran products—in which the quantity of bulk is so small that there is seldom enough to be effective. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran.

Beware of drugs!

Contrast healthful ALL-BRAN with habit-forming pills and drugs, which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased! ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak for a few moments to bring out all its rich flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Try the recipes on every package.

Don't risk a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants—on dining-cars. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Natives Confirmed in Their Belief in Ju-Ju

There is a little final touch to a story in the British Medical Journal which should give supporters to the "thirteen superstition" and similar delusions something to think about.

It occurs at the end of an account, by a medical officer in West Africa, of how thirteen native women were all struck and killed by lightning while cowering under the same galvanized iron shelter. All the natives, including the driver of the motor lorry which had been sent to remove the bodies to a mortuary, firmly refused to enter the shelter, as there was a prevalent belief that anyone removing the bodies before the "ju-ju" had been appeased by a ceremony of purification by the "thunder women" would die within a week.

However, the European manager of the local transport company took the bodies to the mortuary in spite of the warnings he also received. Three days later he was admitted to the European hospital at Accra and died of yellow fever after three days' illness.

WHAT TO SEE IN TOKIO

A Studious Tokyo Newsboy.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

TO GET a mental picture of Tokyo one must hold clearly in mind that Japan's capital is not really a city but a collection of towns and villages, grown together. These settlements preserve their entity in the 13 "wards" frequently mentioned in dispatches relating events in the city.

Tokyo has a peculiar sentimental tie with our own national capital, because the Japanese cherry blossom trees in Potomac park, in Washington, constituted a gift to us, which was recognized by sending to Tokyo a consignment of American dogwood trees. There they form an annual magnet for thousands of Japanese residents at the time of their blooming.

When one sails up the bay of Tokyo to Yokohama, and buys a railroad ticket to Tokyo, he senses the distinctive group form of Japan's capital. For the ticket reads "Shinagawa," or "Shinbashi," not "Tokyo."

The Imperial palace is in the aristocratic ward, or "Ku," known as Kojimachi-Ku. In this palace, originated by Ota Dokwan in 1456, formerly lived the Tokugawa Shoguns. This palace bears witness to the frequent casualties of Tokyo; it often was burned, the last time in 1873. It is not accessible to the public. A Japanese guide-book naively says, "Ordinary people are allowed to approach only as far as the end of the first bridge outside the outer gate." The palace grounds are surrounded by two moats; the perimeter of the outer one is about five miles. In this ward also is the central railway station, with buildings occupying two acres. One of four entrances is reserved for the use of the imperial family.

The Latin quarter of Tokyo lies in Kanda-Ku. Here is the Tokyo Higher Commercial school, the first school of that kind established by the government when it launched upon a policy of adopting western business methods. Upon the grounds of this school grow pine trees which are survivors of the grove standing there when the school tract was part of the Shogun's pleasure park. This ward also is famous for a willow-tree thoroughfare, its second-hand clothes stores, and a Shinto shrine which dates to the Eighth century.

It Is an "Official" City.

While each ward retains distinctive characteristics of the time when it was a separate town, and each has its own business section, Tokyo as a whole has a distinctive individuality. It is an "official" city, and frankly so.

Official hours, official guides, official guide books and official seasons for various sights and scenes are officially proclaimed. You come away with a sense of having been officially conducted through a fairyland of cherry blossoms, of noisy lotus flowers that bloom with a detonation, of doll's festivals, of Geisha girl dances.

The old survives alongside the new. The Geisha girl continues to perform though the cafeteria has made its advent in Tokyo. The Geisha girl is an institution hard for the western mind to comprehend. Her most comparable functionary in the western world was the court jester—long since passed away. She is a modern prototype of the private entertainers of wealthy medieval nobles. She is of a class different from the women of Japan who cling to their semiseclusion amid the inroads of modernism; but she is not of the type which westerners class as the demimonde.

Restaurants and tea houses in Tokyo still have their Geisha girls. The Japanese business man, student, official, or visiting farmer are the patrons. More often it is a party of men friends whom the Geisha girl entertains with song, dance and monologue, and for whom she acts as a sort of hostess.

Custom does not fill these restaurants with husbands and wives, men and their fiancees, or friends of opposite sexes, as in America. But the wish to have members of the other sex present is just as strong in Japan as elsewhere. Hence the Geisha girl.

Outside the pervading sense of official regulation there is infinite variety in Tokyo. Exclusive Kajimachi is very different from bourgeoise Kanda. Busy, bustling Nihombashi, with its "Broadway" and "Billingsgate" is a far cry from Shiba, village of the tower gate and giant hill, native restaurants and distinctive dances.

Easy To Find Your Way Around.

For the humble traveler by the tram, it is exceedingly difficult to get lost in Tokyo. Each car bears the number of its route and inside, at the place where, in America, one would see hosiery and washing powder advertisements, there is a comprehensive map of the city criss-crossed and circled by lines of many colors corresponding to the numbered routes. A knowledge of the language is superfluous. From the guide-book map, or better from the free map furnished by the Japan Tourist bureau, which seeks to make Japanese travel delightful, one locates the place he seeks and the place where he stands. Then it is a mere matter of matching numbers and colors to any spot within the circular railway which forms the rim of the transportation wheel.

This idea of placing a map of the city in the cars themselves instead of on some sequestered wall around the station may rob the traveler of the cultural advantages of tempting pictures of butter and motor cars, but it makes it easy to wander from village to village within the city limits with the minimum of delay and sign language.

Nihombashi is a principal business quarter of the city, although each of the wards is more independent, commercially, than the various sections of most cities. The center of Nihombashi and of Tokyo, is the bridge which in olden times was a measuring point for distances to places throughout the empire. Formerly it was wood; it was rebuilt in 1911 of granite. It is the thoroughfare from each end of this bridge which popularly is known as "Broadway."

In Nihombashi is the Bank of Japan, occupying a building especially designed to be earthquake-proof. One part of the building has three stories underground for strong boxes, and this part can be flooded as protection against fire. In this same section of modern banks and office buildings is a Shinto shrine where charms are dispensed which are supposed to be efficacious in such diverse emergencies as shipwreck, child delivery and being the victim of a liar.

"Newspaper Row" is in Kyobashi-Ku. Here are practically all the principal journals. Shiba-Ku contains the mortuary temples of the Tokugawa Shoguns. A concession to foreign visitors is indicated by the announcement, "Boots need not be taken off, as covers are provided to slip over them."

In Azabu-Ku is a Buddhist temple, memento of the years before Shintoism took firm hold. Shintoism, has been kept alive in Japan from the dawn of the empire. Tokyo, as Japan's capital, became a stronghold of Shintoism because officialdom of Japan support it ardently.

Three Dangers to the City.

The introduction of western buildings greatly enhanced the danger from earthquakes in Tokyo. The fragile houses might be burned and often were, but could not maim their occupants under piles of mortar and stone. Fireproof warehouses were provided for groups of such buildings and when the alarm of fire was sounded the occupants carried off their valuables to these storage places.

Tokyo has had three particular furies of her own to harry her over and over again: pestilence, fire and earthquake. From the close of the Sixteenth century when the old fishing village of Yedo blossomed into a city at the order of the ruling Shogun, these three have from time to time taken heavy toll of life, and the latter two, of property.

Perhaps the most terrible of the many fires that have destroyed great blocks of the inflammable houses of Tokyo occurred in 1657 when 107,000 persons are said to have lost their lives in the flames. The number of palaces destroyed is placed at 500 and the residences of other nobles at more than 700, while between 300 and 400 temples were burned.

ANNUAL INSPECTION OF SAUGERTIES WATER WORKS

The annual inspection of the Saugerties watershed was made on Wednesday by the village trustees, members of the board of water commissioners, engineer and guest. The trip was made by motor and a close survey was made of the improvements which have been made during the past year.

The party inspected the new buildings which have been erected at Blue Mountain and also the head and source of the water supply near West Saugerties in the gorge. The entire party found the entire watershed to be in first class condition and well safeguarded against pollution and contamination.

A roast chicken dinner was served the party at Crotty's at Veteran and after the dinner the party motored to Palenville and Saxton where further inspection was made of some streams. The party consisted of Mayor M. Gillespy, W. H. Overbagh, G. B. Ohley, C. F. Suderley, E. A. Washburn, William Brown, Dr. T. F. O'Dea, E. C. Reed, Supervisor Shults, John C. Maginnis, W. Hommel, Andrew Keefe, Engineer James F. Loughran, W. G. Snyder and E. Becker.

Sincerity in Reading

"Read to see, as far as you can," says Sir Henry Hadow, "the difference between good work and bad, and you will come to like things which you first of all thought dull, austere and inaccessible." That is the secret. Whatever one reads should be read with a critical eye, not merely raced through for the sake of its passing interest, but more or less studied for the qualities it possesses. Every book, however poor, contains something new and instructive. If one reads for improvement as well as interest, an appreciation of the best will come as a matter of course."

MADE HIS BID FOR BARGAIN IN WIVES

Abbe Domenech, the French priest who labored in Texas in the early part of the Nineteenth century, left an interesting record of his work in a book, now out of print, that was published in London in 1863.

One amusing incident he recorded concerned a Presbyterian minister at Brownsville, who bestirred himself to dispose of his three marriageable daughters. The minister, noting that no one sought the hands of his daughters, preached a sermon on the subject of marriage, amplifying the text in Genesis, "Increase and Multiply." He spoke with eloquence and warmth on the bliss of the hymeneal state and ended by offering his three daughters, with $3,000 of fortune for each, to whomsoever would espouse them. He added that he would receive the names of the candidates after service. A wag in the congregation did not wait for the time prescribed by the minister, but shouted from his pew: "Put my name on the list for two."—Kansas City Star.

Mercier Memorial Educates Russian Refugee Youth Living in Louvain War Ruins; Catholic Near East Welfare Association Sponsors Work

RUSSIAN REFUGEE STUDENTS LIVING IN LOUVAIN WAR RUINS

Russian refugee youth living among the ruins of historic war-shattered Louvain are shown here strumming on crude musical instruments which they have fashioned from old macaroni boxes. They play and sing to keep up their courage in the face of hardship brought about by war and revolution in their own country which have left them stranded in Belgium.

These boys who fled to Belgium for shelter were allowed to find haven in the battle-scarred and crumbling ruins of Louvain. The late beloved Cardinal Mercier felt deeply for them in their plight and became their protector. Feeding, clothing and educating the hundreds of boys was the task that Cardinal Mercier left behind when he died. For a time it looked as if his work of mercy would stop and the young men would be denied an education which they all crave.

However, Pope Pius XI sent Prof. Edmund A. Walsh, Vice President of Georgetown University and President of the Catholic Near East Welfare Association, to investigate and, as a result of Dr. Walsh's visit the Catholic Near East Welfare Association will now take over part of the responsibility of looking after the Russian refugee students. The Belgian Government grants the use of the property and the University of Louvain grants free tuition.

It was Father Walsh who was commissioned—by Pope Pius to direct the Papal feeding program in Russia during the famine and naturally he was more than sympathetic with the difficulties the young fellows were having in order to get an education in Belgium.

The young Russians need not worry for the present at least for the Catholic Near East Welfare Association which is a merger of all American Catholic charitable agencies operating in behalf of Russia and the Near East, will furnish funds for this act of international good will.

"The care and education of these Russian students of Louvain will be one of the educational phases of the program of the Association," Prof. Walsh said. This work will constitute an American memorial for Cardinal Mercier sponsored by American Catholics. It will be a living monument to that beloved figure."

The Association was formed in the United States less than a year ago when a nationwide membership was sought among American Catholics. Joseph F. Moore, of Philadelphia, is the executive secretary to the Association and the headquarters are at 480 Lexington Avenue, New York City. Cardinals O'Connell, Dougherty and Hayes are members of the American board of directors of the Association which has the approval of the American Hierarchy. The Association is now initiating an extensive relief and welfare work for Turkey, Armenia, Syria, Bulgaria, Rumania, Greece, Palestine and Russia.

Good Heart Can Rout Hawks of Adversity

What an unimportant trifle may often change the course of a man's life!

Once I was going thoughtfully along the highway.

My soul was weighted down by heavy forebodings. I was overcome with despondency.

I raised my head . . . straight before me ran the road between two stiff rows of poplars. And across the road, about ten paces in front of me, were hopping in single file a family of sparrows, full of life, merriment and courage.

One, in particular, distinguished himself by his bold, sideways hoppings; he stuck out his little breast, and twittered as bravely as if he did not fear the devil himself. A true conqueror!

Meanwhile a hawk circled overhead, whose destiny it was, perhaps, to devour this very hero.

I looked, was forced to laugh, and regained my self-possession. My gloomy thoughts had vanished; I felt again courage, energy and life.

A hawk may be circling over me; but the devil take!—let's keep a good heart!—From Turgenev's Poems in Prose."

Mother Sheep Must Have Jumped Fence

There is a common expression, "stupid as a sheep," but this is not entirely just, for the sheep displays surprising intelligence when its maternal instincts are aroused.

Recently a shepherd was startled by the sudden and frantic bleating of a sheep outside his door. Going outside, he found one of his own flock, which immediately led him to the grazing pasture.

Here he had to open the gate to let the sheep into the field.

She led him to a spot where he found her lamb with its head firmly wedged in a hedge. It was apparent that she had made frantic attempts to free her baby, and failing had gone to the shepherd's home for help.

He freed the lamb, none the worse for its adventure, but has never discovered how the mother sheep got out of the field, which was so well fenced that at no point could he find a gap.—London Tit-Bits.

The DAIRY

POORLY FED COWS NOT PROFITABLE

Milk yields of many poorly fed cows could be increased as much as 50 per cent through improved feeding, says Dr. W. B. Nevens, assistant chief in dairy cattle feeding at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. In a few cases the yield has been nearly doubled, he said.

"When the milk yield of a cow or a herd is increased through better feeding, the profits climb much more rapidly than the cost of the extra feed. In fact, many nonpaying herds have been put on a profitable basis simply through more liberal feeding of a ration better suited to milk production.

"Investigations by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, have shown that cows producing 10,000 pounds (1,160 gallons) of milk, or more, annually used only 42 pounds of digestible matter for each 100 pounds of milk, while cows yielding only half that amount did so at a feed cost of one-third more for each 100 pounds of milk. Some cows were found which gave only 3,000 pounds (350 gallons) or less a year. These cows required one and two-thirds as much feed for each unit quantity of milk as the highest producing cows. The greater the production, the greater the efficiency with which feed is used for milk, for the amounts of feed needed to maintain the animal remain about constant. Some of the best cows use two-thirds of their feed for milk, while the poorest may use only one-third or less.

"The ability of the cows to produce milk is a matter deserving as much attention as the feed. Improved feeding, however, may bring immediate profits, while raising better cows requires several years."

Overfeeding Is Common Error in Handling Calf

"Overfeeding," says C. H. Eckles, chief of the dairy husbandry division of the Minnesota College of Agriculture, "is probably the most common cause of lack of success in raising calves. It is a mistake to assume that because the cream has been removed the calf needs more milk or that because the calf is not doing well it is not getting enough milk and should be allowed to gorge itself. A good rule is always to keep the calf a little hungry. Some provision must be made for making certain that each animal gets its share and no more. A satisfactory plan is to tie the calves in small stanchions during the feeding. Each calf then gets its proper amount and cannot interfere with the feeding of others.

"Under natural conditions, the calf takes its milk frequently and in small quantities. When fed by hand, two feedings a day is the general practice and special care must be taken not to allow the calf to consume more milk than it can digest. For the first two weeks ten to twelve pounds a day is all that the largest calf should receive. If it can be done without too much inconvenience, the calf at this age should be fed three times rather than twice daily.

"As the calf grows older, twice-a-day feedings are sufficient and the milk may be increased, but at no time is it necessary to feed more than sixteen or eighteen pounds daily. By the time the calf needs more than this amount, it will take the additional feed necessary in the form of grain."

Number of Requisites of Success in Dairying

If it were possible to limit the number of requisites of success in dairying to one, that one would be "Know your cows," says Thomas M. Olson, instructor in dairy husbandry at South Dakota State College. Heavy feeding, or feeding a balanced ration does not assure success, although it will increase somewhat the production of the dairy herd. Pure bred dairy cows do not guarantee success, not even pure bred cows from high-producing ancestry. Expensive dairy barns and equipment will probably make dairying more interesting, and increase somewhat the total production, but it is not a requisite for success. Many great dairy cows have been developed and have produced wonderful records in barns that would not measure up to the standard so far as up-to-date dairy barns go.

No dairy cow has ever produced her maximum unless her feeder knew her. Knowing her means more than simply calling her by name and reciting the names of her ancestors. It means understanding her every need, desire, and condition. For after all, the dairy cow is an individual, and as such possesses individuality.

Feed for Profit

Our colleges and experiment stations have shown conclusively that there is no profit in underfeeding. This is true because the bulk of a ration that a cow receives is for board, or as we call it, "maintenance." What an animal consumes over and above maintenance is the part of the ration which gives us a profit. If we feed only maintenance ration, we cannot expect a profit. To produce the best results, then, we must feed both liberally and economically.

Famous Astronomer

Hipparchus, the Greek astronomer, who lived more than 2,000 years ago, long before any of the modern astronomical instruments had been invented, deserves much credit for his accomplishments, says the Kansas City Star.

He catalogued 1,080 of the stars; fixed latitude and longitude; determined the length of the year, the obliquity of the ecliptic, that is, the inclination of the earth's equator to the plane of revolution about the sun; the eccentricity of the earth's orbit, how far it is from being circular; measured the distance of the moon, roughly, and discovered the precision of the equinoxes, that the sun's place among the stars at times of equal day and night constantly tends eastward. This last discovery of Hipparchus waited 2,000 years for its explanation.

Lockjaw Kills Ellenville Girl

First Case of Tetanus in History of Village Resulted in Death of Wilma Vandemark, 10 Years Old, Last Saturday.

Wilma the ten year old daughter of Night Officer Enos Vandermark of East Center street, Ellenville, died Saturday of tetanus, according to the report filed Monday by Health Officer B. Franklin Neal, the attending physician. This was the first case of lockjaw in the history of Ellenville.

The disease developed from a rusty spike which penetrated the child's shoe and scratched the bottom of her foot while she was playing on the grounds back of the Pine Grove Academy a week ago. The wound was of such slight nature that the child thought nothing of it until evening when she told her mother about it. The old fashioned salt pork remedy was applied and when the scratch closed next day, all possibility of poisoning was believed averted.

The following Thursday however, the child returned from school complaining of a curious stiffness in her face and her mother kept her home from school. Friday the child's condition was such that Dr. Neal was summoned and he recognized the symptoms immediately.

Together with Dr. Jack Blumberg he administered six thousand units of the tetanus serum used so successfully abroad during the World War but the treatment came too late.

Iceland in History

Iceland was an independent republic from 930 to 1263, when it joined with Norway. The two came under Danish rule in 1381. When Norway separated from Denmark in 1814, Iceland remained under Denmark. In 1918 Denmark acknowledged Iceland as a sovereign state, united with Denmark only in that the Danish king, Christian X, was also to be king of Iceland. Its permanent neutrality was guaranteed. Provisionally until 1940 Denmark has charge of its foreign affairs, and a joint committee of six reviews bills of importance to both states.

Extremely Ancient Eggs

After cutting his hand on the top of a high cliff, an explorer found a line of egg shells springing like crocuses out of the ground. These proved to be parts of shells laid by a dinosaur—a prehistoric creature that lived probably ten million years ago.

Many of these eggs, supposed to be the oldest in the world, have been recovered from the sands of Mongolia. Bits of them were formerly made by primitive people into ornaments for women's necks.

Overcoming Fear of Dark

Children who suddenly form an aversion to the dark can often be helped in overcoming this fear, by becoming more familiar with the dark. We might play games in dark rooms, and occasionally send the children to unlighted rooms for sweets or new toys. Sometimes giving a flashlight, which he himself can turn on at a moment's notice, has been most helpful.

Women Getting Feminine

"This design for a dinner dress is infinitely more feminine," says the Woman's Home Companion of a new Paris model. "It certainly is," said the crabbed editor. "It leaves corduroy trousers and high rubber boots miles behind."

Another absent-minded man is the salesman who went home and tried to sell his wife a box of cigars for her husband.

HIS WIFE, THE BETTER MANAGER

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

MRS. WHIPPLE read the document carefully, ignoring the outstretched pachidler in her husband's hand.

"Mortgage on the farm," she said, as her eyes reached the bottom, "and you want me to sign it?"

"Naturally, as I'm standing here holding out a pen to you."

She dropped the paper on the table and turned to him. "It's for the automobile you're been talking about, I suppose?" she asked. "Do you remember it took ten years to pay off the mortgage that was on the place when I married you? And do you realize that though Mary's expenses at the seminary and Tom's at college are all paid for the present year, $1,500 will be needed for the next? We have some $900 in the bank, I think, and you've rented the farm we might have counted on for some income. See your way?"

"There you go," said Whipple irritably; "always and forever trying to throw cold water on whatever I bring up. Of course, I remember, and, of course, I realize. The money'll come round all right when it's needed. It always does. But you seem to forget the farm's naturally mine. You didn't have a cent when I married you."

Mrs. Whipple flattened the paper on the table, took the pen from his hand and signed her name quietly. "I can't answer that argument, William," she said coldly. "You flung it at me when you rented the farm. It is an unfortunate fact that I did not bring you any money."

"Oh, come, now, Mary," apologized her husband as he picked up the paper and slipped it into his pocket, "you know I didn't quite mean that. I'm always making fool statements I'm sorry for afterward. Of course, I don't really own the farm. There was the $3,000 mortgage, and you helped pay that off—in fact, it was your idea and energy that rid it. I never could have paid it off by myself. So it's really part yours, and I only rented it for two years, you know. I'm forty-eight and have worked pretty hard, and I—I feel I ought to have a little rest—that both of us ought to. We can take up the farm again at the end of two years if we like.

"I'm awfully glad you've come around to see the automobile buying same as I do," he mumbled. "It's time we had one. Olem Anderson and Sam Potter, and—"

"I understand," she interrupted. "Mrs. Anderson was talking with me the other day. They mortgaged their farm to buy a car. Mr. Potter got his father to indorse a note for him at a bank. The Smiths have considerable surplus money, I believe, so it was all right for them, I understand all right. You had automobile on the brain three months ago, when you first hinted about renting the farm. You'd never have dreamed of such a thing otherwise. You wanted more time to play with it."

"There, that proves you don't understand!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "You think it's just extravagance. It isn't. The agent says there's no trouble at all in selling automobiles. It's fair time now, and he's going round to the big ones and says he'd like a man along to help. So this afternoon I'm to get my car and then go with him a few weeks to learn about driving it and how to sell. Why, I wouldn't wonder if I could sell lots of 'em. The $1,000 won't be needed for nearly a year, and I'm likely to make it two or three times over in that time. The agent says—"

"Just what day does the renter take possession?"

"Next Monday. But he'll come into the house today with his family. That will make it pleasanter for you, me being away, so you won't be lonesome. They take only the back part of the house, so there needn't be any more mixing than you like. It'll be lots easier and pleasanter for you, Mary," conciliatingly; "board with them, have all the company you like and go visiting whenever you like."

"I shall go away myself tomorrow," she said calmly. "No use my staying on here."

"You—go away! But you mustn't, Mary. It wouldn't be right. Then, there's nobody but your sister, and you wouldn't want to live there. Her husband—"

"Not there, of course. I'm thinking of the $1,000. I shall be doing what I can to—"

"Mary!" quick wrath mingling with the expostulation. "You surely don't mean going back to your old work of demonstrating family flour to the public, baking biscuit and waffles with it, and having your girls pass 'em round with cups of coffee to gaping listeners while you talk? I don't mean but its nice work, and you used to draw big pay, and it was listening to you lecturing on a platform that started me to falling in love—but—but, Mary, can't you see? Going back to work would make it seem like—like I was hard up."

Mary Whipple looked at him with a half smile, tenderness in her eyes, but resolution on her lips. She was still the striking figure that had demonstrated flour to the public twenty years before, a little older, a little stouter, but with the same friendly eyes and clear, persuasive voice.

"Will Whipple," she smiled, "you're a dear, good man, with a warm, loving heart as big as your body. Your face is still the same handsome, clean-souled one that I once singled out from the crowd looking up at me. But, for all that, you're only a big irresponsible, headstrong boy, as you always have been and always will be. Just now you've taken the bit in your mouth in spite of reason and my wishes. Indeed, you didn't even ask my advice, knowing you were contemplating a foolish move. But we'll let all that pass. Now you want to lock me up while you're racing with a lot of future trouble. It can't be done. Will, really and truly it can't. I've got to try to head you off in some way, get between you and the stone wall, and arrange as best I can for that $1,000. To tell the whole truth, Mary and Tom are more in my thoughts just now than you."

After dinner Whipple left, with profuse but unsaid apologies in his eyes and hesitating voice. The next morning the new tenant arrived with his family, slipping quietly into the back part of the house. Toward noon there was a whirr and honking outside that drew Mrs. Whipple to a window. She supposed it was her husband, returned unexpectedly. But, no, it was a strange car, much handsomer and more substantial looking than her husband's.

She already had packed and dressed for departure and had been about to call the tenant's boy to harness a horse when the honking came. She went to see what was wanted.

"Mr. Whipple at home?"

"No, and likely to be gone several weeks."

The man seemed much disappointed. "Too bad!" he exclaimed, "and here I've made a run of twenty miles to see him. We heard he was thinking of buying a car and we've got the best for the money that's on the market. You see, I happened to be in this section starting a new agent and, fearing he might not be experienced enough yet to show off the car properly, I came up myself. I'm the traveling manager of the firm and must leave tomorrow. Well, I may as well go."

"Wait a few minutes, please," said Mrs. Whipple, as she stepped outside. "I'd like to look at the car and have a little talk with you."

They looked over the automobile together, he explaining and listening to what she said. His first impatience soon gave place to a forgetfulness that he was in a hurry. At the end of twenty minutes he was nodding and smiling.

"We've never tried a woman before," he said; "but with your previous experience and manner I really believe it's going to be great. And your grasp of things is nothing less than intuition. In a few days you'll know as much about the car as I do. Now you say you were all ready to start. Have your suitcase brought out and put into the car and I'll take you right through. It will be quicker than a train, and I will want to introduce you to the general manager myself. You'll be just the person to reach the higher class of woman trade."

At the end of six weeks Whipple came home. He was not a good correspondent, and in all the six weeks he had not written a line home. He approached the house apologetically. But all he found was a brief note from his wife, giving her address in care of a well-known automobile firm. He looked at the name perplexedly.

"Demonstrating flour," he muttered, "and to be addressed here. What—oh, I see. Using one of their cars, of course."

For a week he stayed at the farm, not knowing what to do with himself. Then he took his car out on a selling trip through the neighborhood, without success. One man really wanted a car and he looked over Whipple's very carefully and then went up to the city and purchased one just like it. When Whipple heard of it he scowled. "I primed him up for the purchase," he thought, dismally, "but he felt a plain farmer's opinion on automobiles couldn't be depended on, so he went and bought of some dapper city salesman. Ho-hum! Wish I hadn't rented. Wish Mary'd come home."

But it was six months before Whipple saw a handsome machine cross the yard swiftly and curve to a graceful stop directly in front of the door. He was admiring the skill of it while hurrying forward to find out what was wanted. Then he stopped short, staring, when he saw that his wife was the driver and only occupant.

"I didn't know you could run a machine, Mary," he stammered.

"Been running this one nearly six months," she answered, as she dropped lightly to the ground and offered her face for a kiss. "How are things?"

"Rotten," he groaned. "I've paid out half the rent money in repairing my car, and now I guess it's nothing but a junk pile, for I can't make it stir any more. Wish we could go back to where we were before we rented. But that's a dandy car you've got. Where did you hire it?"

"Bought it, Will," she answered. "Or rather, the firm gave it to me as a bonus on sales. I've had fine success, and the $1,600 is already banked. Of course, we can't come back to the farm till the two years are up, so I'll keep on machine selling till then, Will, for I have a sale pending at Milltown this evening. I sold one this morning fifty miles the other way, and came by here in hope of finding you at leisure. I need a man to help me in my sales. Will you do it, Will?"

And Whippie, to his glory be it said, answered: "Yes, glad to Mary. You're the leader."

Thirteen at Table

The origin of the superstition about the unluckiness of the thirteenth person at a table is so old as to be unknown. Thirteen, from earliest times, has been a number with mystic associations—like three and seven.

Rev. E. Cobham Brewer's "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable" records that: "It is said that the origin of sitting down thirteen at dinner being deemed unlucky is because, at a banquet in Valhalla, Loki once intruded, making thirteen guests, and Balder was slain.

"In Christian countries the superstition was confirmed by the Last Supper of Christ and the twelve apostles, but the superstition itself is much anterior to Christianity."

C. E. CONVENTION AT STONE RIDGE SATURDAY

The annual convention of the Ulster County Christian Endeavor Union will be held Saturday in the Reformed Church at Stone Ridge. Sessions begin at 10 o'clock that morning and the convention closes with an evening service. An exceptionally interesting program has been arranged.

Chicago Grain Market.

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Wheat—September, $1.25¾; December, $1.30½.

Corn—September, 91½c; December, 94½c.

Oats—September, 47¾c; December, 48⅝c.

New York Egg Market.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Eggs firm; receipts 21,262. Pacific coast whites, extra, 58½c@61c; do firsts to extra firsts, 44c@54½c; nearby pullets, 37c@38c.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The stock market, freed from the restraint imposed by fears of a gigantic increase in brokers' loans which proved to be unfounded, bounded upward today as buying orders poured in for a wide variety of stocks. Early gains ran from 1 to 8 points.

With about half a billion dollars to be distributed in the form of interest and dividend payments next month, a good demand developed for the seasoned dividend paying issues. Weekly mercantile review continued to report irregularly in the business situation, with the south making the best showing. Call money remained firm at 4 per cent due to the heavy month end demands for currency. Banks called about $19,000,000 in loans.

Houston Oil was the individual feature, soaring 7½ points before profit taking sales checked the advance. International Silver, DuPont, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Commercial Solvents Case Threshing, Canadian Pacific and General Motors (old stock) all sold 5 or more points above yesterday's final quotations. Scores of others including General Asphalt, A. M. Byers, General Motors (new), United Drug, General Railway Signal and International Cement advanced 2 points or more.

There were only a few soft spots. Baldwin and Abitibi power, which recovered sensational advances of about 10 points each yesterday, fell back about 3 points on realizing.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

CONTROL PEACH TREE NUISANCE

Paradichlorobenzene, popularly called "p-c-benzene," has been found effective in checking to some extent the inroads of the oriental peach moth, announce authorities at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, New Brunswick.

This makes this chemical of double value to peach growers, who have been using it for a number of years to control peach-tree borers. Practically the same operation is adequate for both the oriental peach moth and the borer.

The practice in use by peach growers for controlling the borer is to roll the ground around the base of the tree so as to remove weeds and trash. Then the crystals are placed on the ground in a continuous equal ring about two inches from the bark. To prevent injury care is used to see that they do not touch the bark at any point. Next, a mound of earth from 4 to 6 inches high is placed on top of the crystals around the tree and firmed with the foot or the back of a shovel. Just the right amount of chemical is used to kill the insects without harming the trees. Doses of three-fourths to one ounce per peach tree six years old or more kills 90 to 100 per cent of the borers and produces little or no injury in the average commercial orchard. On trees three to five years old, the dose is one-half ounce and mounds are allowed to remain for three weeks. With older trees the mounds are safely left all winter and removed the following spring.

By a slight modification in the procedure the ranks of the destructive oriental peach moth also are reduced, according to Dr. T. J. Headlee, entomologist at the experiment station. The only change is to mound the dirt on the p-c-benzene about 8 to 12 inches instead of only 4 or 6. It has been found that this permits the fumes to reach larvae of the moth, many of which hibernate near the base of the tree or on the trunk.

Carefully Remove and Burn Old Berry Canes

After red raspberries, blackberries or black raspberries are harvested, the old canes should be removed and burned. If the old canes are allowed to stand they may spread disease to the young shoots which will bear fruit next year.

While the old canes still have some life, they cut easier than they do later in the fall when they become dry and hard. In sections, however, where heavy snows are common, it may be desirable to leave the old canes until spring to protect the young canes so the snow will not break them.

The current-season's canes may be thinned during the fall to take out the weak shoots, although this job may be left until spring. With red raspberries and blackberries, the extra, young canes may be reset.

Soils for Orchard Should Be Deep and Fairly Heavy

The soil for the orchard should be deep and reasonably heavy, with a clay subsoil, so as to retain moisture well. Light land with porous subsoil cannot be made to hold sufficient moisture to sustain the trees in a vigorous growing condition. The exposure of the orchard is also an important factor. It is well known that northern slopes usually support more vegetation than do southern slopes. They are less exposed to the sun's rays and hence the soils are cooler and contain more moisture throughout the year. It is evident, therefore, that the non-irrigated orchard should have a northern or northeastern exposure.

Horticulture Squibs

Cut old raspberry canes now and top off the new ones.

Fruits and vegetables that catch the eye are those that catch the cash.

* * *

Trees are like other plants, some grow faster than others, so it is hard to say how long it will take to make a tree of a given size.

* * *

The peach is somewhat different from the apple in its food requirements, and it can therefore follow an apple tree much more readily than a young apple tree could.

* * *

The man who has a vineyard of any extent and waits until March and April to prune will be liable to find he is up against something, freezing and thawing, mud and sleet.

* * *

Strawberries are usually transplanted in the spring, although they may be set in the fall if desired.

* * *

Gardens and orchards do cost something, but not nearly as much as doctors and undertakers.

* * *

The failure of many home blackberry patches is due to red rust, which attacks the leaves and young shoots and will spread unless controlled. The only practical control measure is to dig out and burn all plants that are attacked.

Awkward Place for Echo

An extraordinary echo is produced by the high hills surrounding a golf course in the south of England, and it is feared that a three-mile limit may have to be fixed for children and clergymen.—From Punch, London.

Condemn Stand Taken by Smith

Republicans Declare Opposition to Constitutional Amendment for Governor, Is an Act of Partisan Politics.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Governor Alfred E. Smith's opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment providing for a four year term for Governor, with gubernatorial elections held simultaneously with presidential elections, was "condemned as an act of partisan politics" in the declaration of party principles adopted by the New York Republican state convention here today.

"We favor the pending constitutional amendment for the election of state officers for terms of four years, of the senate for four years, and the assembly for two years," the platform declared. "The amendment provides that these officials shall be chosen in the year when the largest number of persons vote. We condemn as an act of partisan politics the Democratic party's attack on the proposal of a four year term for Governor. By such opposition an effort is made to perpetuate the hold of Tammany Hall upon the state government, first through defeat of this amendment and later by substitution therefor of an alternate proposal in order to shift the election of governors for a four year term to a year midway between national contests when few people vote. Under the present form of ballot there is no longer any danger that the voter will be misled in confusing state and national issues. Opposition to this amendment is based entirely upon the desire to procure political advantage and we consider a reflection upon the intelligence of the voters."

The platform also urged ratification of the Amendment to provide for the creation of an executive budget. "The proposal" the platform stated, "was first brought before the state by Republicans acting under the genius and leadership of Elihu Root. It was approved in its present form by a commission under the leadership of Charles E. Hughes, and was proposed to the state electorate by the Republican legislature in the last two sessions."

No reference to prohibition, either in nation or state, was contained in the platform.

The State Issues.

With reference to state issues, the legislature of 1927 was commended "for effective work in the enactment of beneficial legislation", among which was mentioned specifically the increase of $16,500,000 in state aid to public schools, strengthening of the criminal laws, extension of the emergency rent law, and amendment of the labor and workmen's compensation law.

"We urged upon the people the necessity of returning to the assembly this year a Republican majority," the platform declared. "The assembly always has been regarded as the branch of government closest to the people. In the election of such a majority will be found the approval by the people of its constructive work of its Republican legislation and rejection of unsound Democratic principles."

The bearers were David Hanrahan, James McGuire, William Birmingham, Thomas Callahan, James Lahey and William Goldpaugh. Interment was in St. Ann's Cemetery, Sawkill, where the final absolution was pronounced by the Rev. Father Fuchs.

John D. Tibbals died at his home, 311 Washington avenue, this morning, after being confined to his home for about three weeks, having been afflicted with a paralytic stroke. He is survived by his wife, Margaret Middagh Tibbals, and two daughters, Mollie, wife of Albert V. Moore of Dumont, N. J., and Marguerite, wife of Mark R. Lockwood of Bergenfield, N. J., and one grandchild. Mr. Tibbals was well-known in city and county, being a clerk at the clothing store of Sam Bernstein for 27 years, and previously was a member of the clothing firm of Lawrence & Tibbals, clothiers, and had also been employed in other stores. He was a son of the late Henry W. Tibbals who was Ulster county clerk from 1862-64. Fraternally Mr. Tibbals was a member of Franklin Lodge, No. 37, K. of P., and held high offices. In 1891 he was elected grand inside guard at the grand lodge convention held at Cortland, N. Y., had been past chancellor and guard of Kingston Division, No. 18, and a past district deputy. He was a life member of Wiltwyck Hose Company and had been an assistant foreman of the company and a trustee. For years he was an active member of the First Dutch Church. He was a man who was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Funeral services from his late residence on Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Why Breathe Through Nose?

Reasons for breathing through the nose instead of the mouth are: (1) to warm the air; (2) to moisten the air; (3) to remove the dust and germs; (4) to produce more suction in the chest, which helps draw blood into the lungs as well as air, thus helping the heart, and more easily attaining second wind.

Guard British Food Route

Imperialism has increased income taxes by clearing jungles and planting crops, thus upsetting nature's equilibrium. One-fifth of man's tropical harvests are eaten by insects, and as half the British empire is in the tropics, and Dominion farms are in the front line of attack, Britain has established an entomology bureau to discover parasites that can do more than cruisers to keep the food route guarded.

Has Eye for Color

A ninety-four-year-old woman recently suggested a color scheme for the trolley cars of the Baltimore traction lines, which may be adopted as the standard. Mrs. Edward Block of Baltimore suggested the color combination. "Although I am far in my ninety-fifth year I still have an eye for the beautiful things of life," she says.

Auto Club Seeks Gas Tax Sentiment

State Automobile Association In Open-Minded and Asks Clubs to Reach Decision on Attitude Toward Tax Prior to State Convention.

Delegates from the Ulster County automobile Club to the annual convention of the New York State Automobile association to be held at Rochester October 17 and 18, will be Lafayette V. Simpkins of Woodstock and Benjamin Suskind of Kingston.

The Ulster County Automobile Club has been requested by the state association to reach a decision prior to the convention as to its attitude in regard to the gas tax which will be one of the most important questions before this convention and also before the 1927 session of the New York State Legislature.

The state association has recently sent to all of its member clubs a communication from Arthur W. Brandt, state commissioner of highways, in which Commissioner Brandt outlines a five-year program of increased construction in development of the highway system.

Commissioner Brandt's five-year program calls for an annual expenditure by the state of close to $44,000,000 in addition to money contributed by counties and towns out of motor vehicle receipts. If Commissioner Brandt's program is adopted it will mean an annual expenditure for highway purposes by the state of upwards of $50,000,000.

To carry out this large program, Commissioner Brandt claims it will be necessary for the state to adopt a gas tax and the automobile clubs of the state will decide their atittude in the matter at the convention in Rochester, October 17 and 18.

Delegates of all clubs are asked to come to the convention prepared to register the attitude of their respective localities on this question. Many clubs will conduct referendum not only among their own members but extending also to all the motorists of the community.

The New York State Automobile Association is approaching the gas tax question this year with an open mind. At the present time the state association is not on record, either for or against a gas tax. Its final decision will be reached only after a vote of the delegates at the Rochester meeting.

A special meeting will be held at the club's headquarters, 783 Broadway, on Tuesday, October 4, at 7:30 p. m.

Game Called.

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP).—Today's scheduled game between the Boston and Philadelphia Americans has been called to permit a doubleheader to be played tomorrow, winding up the baseball season in Philadelphia.

Harry Schirick Adopts a Title

Democratic Candidate for Mayor This Fall is Now Known as "The People's Candidate," According to His Advertising Placards.

Harry E. Schirick, the Democratic candidate for mayor of Kingston this fall, has adopted a new party title or designation. According to his advertising placards which are now being distributed about the city he desires to be known to all and sundry as "The People's Candidate."

The placards which carry a very good picture of "The People's Candidate," also state that Mr. Schirick was "your city judge" and will be "your mayor."

The Schirick placards are the first to make their appearance in the store windows about the city.

YOUTH ARRESTED FOR ASSAULTING GIRL

William Vetter, 16 years old, of Staples street, was arrested Thursday by Sergeant Phinney, who charged the youth with assaulting an 11 year old girl while she was returning home. According to the police, the youth confessed when he was positively identified by the little girl.

According to the police the youth stopped the girl while she was on her way home but she broke away from him and escaped. While she was running away she met an elder girl and told her of the affair, and the matter was brought to the attention of the police department. The alleged assault occurred several days ago and after considerable work on the case the Vetter boy was arrested and charged with the crime.

The final disposition of the case is expected to be made in county court.

YOUNG MAN'S SWEETHEARTS WERE SCRAPPING OVER CAR.

The police department received a telephone call Thursday night as there was a fracas on one of the uptown streets. When the officers arrived they found that two sweethearts of a certain young man had gotten into an argument over the young man's car. It appears that one of the young ladies had advanced the young man $75 which he had applied on the purchase of the automobile. The two sweethearts were warned to leave each other alone and not make it necessary for the police to again be called upon. No arrests were made.

Runaway Brothers Found.

Olean, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Gerald and Clair Perqueen, youthful brothers who ran away from home last week for the third time within a month, were found in Lakewood and were brought home today.

Big Backing for Mrs. McCormick

Woman Republican Candidate For Congressman-at-Large Expected to Receive Strong Organization Support.

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Ruth Hannah McCormick will probably have strong organization support in her campaign for the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large, friends here said after the announcement of her candidacy at Washington yesterday.

Before leaving for Washington Mrs. McCormick is understood to have conferred with many political leaders, and her decision to seek the nomination may have been based partly on the result of these talks.

Through the union of political forces, Governor Small and Mayor Thompson have concentrated Republican organization strength, and Mrs. McCormick is believed to be favorably viewed by these two leaders.

The nucleus of Mrs. McCormick's support is expected to be the Republican Women's Clubs, for whose organization throughout the state she was largely responsible. Another source of probable support is expected by her friends from former associates of her husband, the late Senator Medill McCormick, who served one term as congressman-at-large before being elected to the United States Senate.

NOTED PULPIT ORATORS AT REDEEMER CHURCH.

The Rev. Henry W. Elson, D. D., of 1314 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, N. J., will preach at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Sunday. The Rev. William J. Nelson, former pastor of the local church, will assume his duties as pastor of the First Lutheran Church, leading Evangelical congregation of Paterson, N. J., Sunday. The Rev. William A. Freas, D. D., will occupy the pulpit in the Church of the Redeemer, Sunday, October 9.

A large assemblage is expected to attend the services at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer Sunday to hear the Rev. Mr. Elson, D. D., who is noted as a most interesting speaker. He will come to Kingston highly recommended by the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of New York and New England. Dr. Elson was formerly president of the Thiel College and is the author of a famous publication on the history of the United States, used extensively in public schools.

The Rev. William A. Freas, D. D., of New York city who is scheduled to preach at the services on Sunday, October 9, is also a clergyman prominent in the activities of the Evangelical Lutheran Church and an orator who has much ability to create interest while spreading the doctrines of his church. Dr. Freas is at present secretary of Inner Missions for the United Lutheran Church.

LITTLE BOY RAN TRICYCLE INTO A TRUCK THURSDAY.

Arthur L. Merrihew of Tillson reported to the police department Thursday afternoon that while driving his truck through Dunn street, Howard Haines, 5 years old, of 528 Abeel street, riding his tricycle down the Burnett street hill, ran into the truck. The tricycle was wrecked and the boy received an injured right arm.

JURY FOUND NORA FADOUL NOT GUILTY OF ASSAULT.

After a jury trial in police court Thursday evening Nora Fadoul, 70 years old, was found not guilty of assault in the third degree and she was discharged. Mrs. Fadoul was arrested on a warrant sworn out by John Janakis of 29 East Strand who charged Mrs. Fadoul with striking his infant daughter, Mary E. Janakis, on August 3. Mrs. Fadoul was represented by Attorney Chris J. Flanagan while Attorney Isidore Sampson appeared for Mr. Janakis.

Attend Grahamsville Fair.

A number of Kingston people went to the Grahamsville Fair in Sullivan county today, it having been postponed two days owing to rain. This fair which is held only one day annually is very largely attended. Dr. W. H. Hoar has been superintendent of the fair for thirty-nine consecutive years.

City Fordson On Fire.

This morning while the city Fordson tractor and trailer were at the stone crusher on Wilbur avenue after a load of stone the apparatus suddenly caught fire. An alarm was turned in from Box 34 to which the fire department responded. The damage to the tractor was slight.

C. D. of A. Rehearsal.

There will be a rehearsal this evening at 8 o'clock of the cast, which will present the Catholic Daughters of America minstrel. The rehearsal will be held in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Broadway and Andrew street. A full attendance is requested.

A Card Party.

The Sons and Daughters of Liberty will hold a card party at Mechanics' Hall, Henry street, Monday, October 3, at 8:30 p. m. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. The public is cordially invited.

St. Paul Church Food Sale.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the St. Paul Lutheran Church will hold a food sale at the store of Herman La Tour, corner Broadway and Brewster street, Saturday afternoon.

Kills Self With Shotgun.

Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Wilbur I. Sanford, 32, foreman for a trucking company, killed himself with a shotgun here today. His wife is ill in a hospital.

Kiddies' Fashions Adult Miniatures

Styles for Youngsters Now Like Mothers and Sisters Are Wearing.

Clothes for little girls, in particular, are perfect miniatures of their mothers and older sisters.

This striking similarity, however, does not mean that modern children are becoming super-sophisticated or that their adults are striving for exaggerated youthfulness. It illustrates the simplicity of the established fashions which makes them appropriate for women and children.

The "baby" sister, for example, (from four to fourteen years) may wear for school or play a sweater costume which is an exact duplicate of the one which her mother or sister wears to the links for her game of golf. The horizontal stripes, graduated in size, usually take on more vivid colors for the younger generation and may be matched by striped socks worn on little brown legs, but otherwise the sweater and skirt costume is only a big one reduced.

The cardigan, too, as well as the slipover has shrunk to the proportions of a six-year-old who wears it traveling with no small amount of child-smartness. It is of light-weight wool crepe just like the grown-up sizes and is worn with either a little silk blouse or another sweater.

And silk underwear is by no means the exclusive right of the debutante or 'teen-age daughter. Tiny glove-silk vests and bloomers in dainty pink and peach shades are found in the lingerie drawer of the family along with the everyday white muslin combinations.

The grown-ups have no monopoly even upon coolie coats—for they too have been minimized into small-size wrappers or lounging coats, with the same exotic colors and designs that appear on the large ones.

The scaling-down of the fashions does not stop with the larger articles of apparel but continues to the details.

Small felt hats, too (with medium brims), look almost exactly like the tailored ones which belong to older members of the family and are often almost the same in head size (when the grown-ups have a close shingle-bob).

Choose Stocking Heel That Will Fit Shoe

When you purchase stockings, does it ever occur to you to see that the heel of the stocking is becoming to the type of shoe it is to be worn with, or do you buy the particular type of heel you have seen advertised as being the "smart thing" and then wear it with any and all styles of shoes?

A low-heeled shoe, or any sports shoe, demands a square-heeled stocking. The pointed heel is worn with the opera pump or the severely plain one-strap slipper. The intricately strapped or cutout dress shoe takes the square heel, as the pointed heel worn with this type of shoe would make just one more irregular outline!

Hats, Handbags Match; Shown in Many Colors

Hats and handbags to match are being produced in many colors in Paris. Usually felt is chosen for the accessory ensemble, but one also sees crepe de chine and taffeta. The ensemble match the dress in color.

Felt hats and handbags, kasha or silk sport dresses, and colored kid shoes make bright costumes when such colors as green, blue or pink are chosen.

Brushed Angora Strands Are Used as Embroidery

Wearing an interesting yarn—the embroidery of many of the smartest new frocks of lightweight woolen is worked in brushed angora strands. Often a deep yoke and upper portion of the sleeves are worked in dull-white yarn in a design perfectly simulating lace.

79 Known Dead In St. Louis

news was flashed to the downtown section, the police and fire departments hastily mobilized and soon the sirens of fire apparatus and police ambulances announced the coming of outside help.

The first movement was toward Central High School. Firemen found 25 injured people who were immediately removed as the roof threatened to fall. Then the search for dead was begun in all parts of the area.

Fire broke out in several places and was extinguished by firemen with the help of a steady drizzle of rain which followed the tornado.

Army Relief Work.

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP).—Major General William Lassiter, commanding the sixth corps area, Chicago, was placed in direct charge of army relief work in connection with the St. Louis tornado by war department orders issued today in response to a request for federal assistance from the governor of Missouri.

General Lassiter will proceed in person to St. Louis. He already has made preparations to move a thousand men from Jefferson barracks to that city for patrol or other duty.

The war department also directed Major General Harry Smith, commanding the seventh corps area at Omaha, to cooperate with General Lassiter in extending assistance at St. Louis.

RALLY DAY SUNDAY AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday, October 2, will be rally day at the Poughkeepsie Congregational Church on Academy street. Charles W. Latimer of Albany will address the morning audience. At the Bible school session, Mr. Latimer will give a short talk. An orchestra will furnish music and a roll call of the school will be made.

In the evening the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 4 will attend in a body. Mrs. W. R. Anderson of this society will deliver a ten minute address on "The Home." R. H. Van Valkenburgh will speak on "The Day School" and the pastor will talk on "The Church." This will be "Go to church Sunday" for every body.

Recover Automobile.

Belmont, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Recovering of the automobile in which Wilmot Leroy Wagner, alleged slayer of two New York State Troopers, is believed to have escaped into Pennsylvania, and detention of Wagner's sister, Mrs. Grace Miller, as a material witness, marked Allegany county's investigation of the murder today.

Select New Store Fixtures.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. De Graf left today for Baltimore where they will select the stock and fixtures for the new Newark Shoe Store which will open in the Newberry building on Wall street about the middle of October. Mr. De Graff will be partner-manager of the new concern.

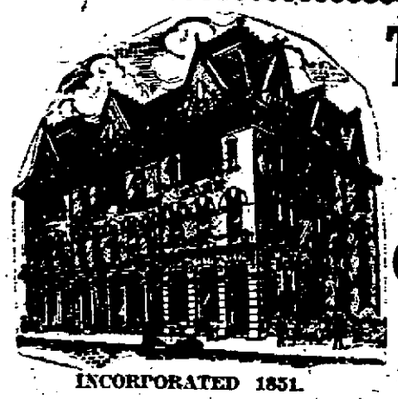
Smith Discovers A New American

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Governor Smith has discovered a new American—the 25 per cent citizen who votes only once in four years.

Replying to the statement of Senator John Knight that the man who votes once in four years should be the determining factor in the election of a governor, Mr. Smith told the Democratic state convention here that the "25 per cent citizen is the man who has little interest in the state, so little interest in its business, or so little interest in the policies that are advocated for governmental purposes, that he takes occasion to vote only when there is a president running. And he is the man because of his love and devotion to the state who ought to be the determining factor."

TREE SURGEON KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP.

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Ira Zirs, a tree surgeon of Collingwood, Pa., was instantly killed early today when the automobile in which he was riding with three friends from Scotia, ran off the highway en route to Saratoga Springs. Zirs, who was riding in the back seat, was thrown out of the car and landed on his head in an adjoining field. His neck was broken and skull fractured. Other occupants of the car were not hurt.



The Old, Old Story of Sticking at It

INCORPORATED 1851.

Two men start out in life together, one gets ahead, the other doesn't.

It isn't because of the difference in incomes. Their incomes may be equal.

HERE IT IS: One commits himself to a definite purpose for saving money—AND STICKS TO IT. The other keeps putting it off, and his savings don't get saved.

The man who can't build a Savings Account isn't half the man he thinks he is.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL 1928 TO START.

Deposits Made On or Before October 4th, 1927, will draw interest from October 1st.

Interest Credited Quarterly on the first days of January, April, July and October on all amounts from $1.00 to $7,500, upon which interest may be allowed to accumulate and interest will be compounded on the total amount.

Undesirable Taste and Odors to Milk

Department of Agriculture Made Tests at Beltsville.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To determine whether dried beet pulp, green oats and peas, pumpkins, carrots, sugar beets, rape, soy beans and kale when fed to dairy cows impart undesirable flavors and odors to the milk, and to ascertain the best methods of feeding such crops and handling the milk, the United States Department of Agriculture has conducted feeding tests at its experiment farm at Beltsville, Md.

The cows selected for the investigations were giving milk relatively free from abnormal flavors and odors when fed a basic hay and grain ration, and varied in stage of lactation from those fresh to those nearing end of lactation period.

Besides the succulent feed the animals received, in proportion to milk produced, varying quantities of the following grain mixture: 100 pounds each of hominy feed, bran and oats and 50 pounds each of cottonseed meal and linseed meal. In addition they were given all the alfalfa hay they would readily consume. The cows were divided into groups of four each, and interchanged at intervals of four days.

Dried beet pulp soaked and fed wet one hour before milking in quantities up to 30 pounds produced but a slightly abnormal flavor and odor in the milk. The results followed the feeding of a like quantity of green oats and peas one hour before and after milking. Both kale and rape fed in similar quantities on hour prior to milking produced a decidedly abnormal flavor and odor in the milk, but had a negligible effect when fed afterward. Soy beans fed one hour before milking tended to improve the flavor and odor of the milk.

Further details of the experiments are given in Technical Bulletin No. 9-T, "Effect of Some Succulent Feeds on the Flavor and Odor of Milk," a copy of which may be obtained free upon request to the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Origin of Word Chevon Is Clearly Explained

An interesting interview was had with B. M. Halbert of Sonora on the word "chevon," and its adoption as a universal trade name for goat meat. It was through Mr. Halbert's efforts that the national contest was held and a prize of a registered Angora buck was given for the most appropriate name submitted. This contest was held by the official organ of the association, the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Magazine, of San Angelo. Twenty-five hundred names were submitted, and out of this number Mrs. E. W. Hargraves, a ranchwoman, won with the word chevon. She created the word from the two French words "chevri," (goat) and "mouton" (mutton.) This was in 1922 and all the associations adopted this word as the official name, but it was not recognized by the United States Department of Agriculture until September, 1924.

D for Denarius

The "d" in English money is the abbreviation for "penny." It stood originally for the Latin denarius, a coin of value equivalent to the Anglo-Saxon penny. Medieval money changers continued its use as an abbreviation for the penny and gave it a fixed place in English custom. A penny is approximately equal in value to two cents. The half penny is therefore about the equivalent of our cent.

Pretty Emerald Legend

The loveliest butterflies have given rise to curious folk lore. In a famous collection is one wonderfully colored insect from Colombia, which is quite rare. It occurs throughout the emerald belt. According to the natives, when one of these insects dies it is buried under the earth and becomes an emerald.

Cutting Canada Thistle by Phases of the Moon

Cutting Canada thistle by phases of the moon, signs of the zodiac, on certain mysterious dates or according to the appearance of sun spots, methods all advocated by some farmers, will not eradicate the pest, but belief in these signs sometimes has the practical value of causing the thistle to be cut before seeding, is the opinion of A. A. Hanson of the Purdue extension staff.

The most valuable sign by which to cut the pestiferous thistle is found in the flowering head. If the spiny nuisance is cut as soon as the heads begin to show purple, the production of seeds is usually prevented and the plant will spread but slowly. The principal means by which Canada thistles spread is the wind-distributed seeds which are frequently blown considerable distances. A single seed may thus start a new patch several hundred feet from the parent plant.

Silage Should Be Used With Other Roughages

Silage is relished by all kinds of farm animals and is a reasonably safe feed for any except males kept for breeding purposes, or horses at heavy labor. However, best results are not secured by feeding only silage, but it should be used in connection with other roughage and grain in proportions varying with the kind and condition of animals as well as the end one intends to effect through feeding. That a feed is cheap and plentiful is no reason for wasting it, and true economy in feeding is only to be found where there is a definite purpose in view.

Neglected Opportunity

Large areas of land in almost every section of the country are, or should be, in permanent pasture. The fact that much land which is in pasture was once covered with bluegrass and white clover and is now growing little but weeds and inferior grasses is evidence enough of declining fertility and explodes the theory that pasture land automatically maintains its fertility. Pastures need cultivation and fertilization just as much as any other crop.

"Let No Dog Bark"

Once, in Amy Lowell's summer house in New Hampshire, we stole from our bedroom next to hers to breakfast in a distant corner where no rattle of trays would disturb the sleeping poet after a night of work. The window framed Monadnock in morning magnificence, and nature also seemed asleep. A curious scraping sound broke the early stillness, and into our ken, over the shingles of the sloping piazza roof, painfully crawled the white-haired housemaid, with something white held between her teeth. A napkin had been forgotten. She would not risk disturbing Miss Lowell by the opening of a door.—Elizabeth Ward Perkins in Scribner's Magazine.

Clinking Glasses

The habit of clinking wine glasses or tumblers together, and the attendant wish of "good health," originated in the days of the Roman gladiators. It was the custom before two gladiators met in combat, for each of them to drink a glass of wine, supplied by a friend of either of them. So that no attempts would be made to poison either of the combatants, the wine was poured from one glass to another until the wines were well mixed. Later, when poisoning became a thing of the past, this custom was reduced to the mere clinking together of the glasses to denote friendship.

Illness Widespread

It is estimated that about 8,000,000 individuals are seriously ill in the United States every day in the year.

Lawyers to Speak About Politics

Kingston women will be interested in the citizenship meeting which will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association hall on Monday, October 3, at eight o'clock. Two of Kingston's leading lawyers will be the speakers, both prominent members of their parties. John W. Eckert will present the issues of the Republican party and Thomas F. Coughlin will speak for the Democrats. In addition one of the new voting machines will be demonstrated and definite instructions will be given as to how votes should be cast on election day. These machines are not complicated but matters will be much facilitated at the polls, if voters have previously learned the use of the machine.

Make Mirror Brilliant

To clean a mirror in such a way as to bring it to the highest state of brilliancy, very fine whiting, or better, precipitated chalk, is one of the best known agents. The mirror should be rubbed gently with methylated spirits with a soft, clean sponge, and then dusted with the whiting or chalk. After a moment it should be wiped with a dry cloth, another softer cloth, or more effectively, a silk handkerchief, should be used for the final polishing, which should leave the glass clear and brilliant.

War Veterans To Get Out Vote

Herman R. La Tourette, state patriotic instructor of the Department of the State of New York, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has announced that the Americanization committee of which he is the chairman, is planning a state wide campaign, through one thousand local committees to get out the stay at home vote.

Last November, when the people were called upon to elect a governor, Supreme court judges, and a complete state Senate and Assembly and hundreds of other local officials, less than sixty per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls to cast their vote, he said.

"Our committee," said Mr. La Tourette, "is interested in getting out the stay-at-home voters, only as a protection to the high ideals and principals upon which this country was founded. The continued apathy and indifference on the part of the citizenry of this country is endangering those principals and is one of the greatest perils facing the government today."

"Adventure" Only for Man Physically Fit

I find that most people think of "adventure" when the word "exploration" is used. To the explorer, however, adventure is merely an unwelcome interruption of his serious labors. He is looking, not for thrills, but for facts about the unknown. Often his search is a race with time against starvation. To him, an adventure is merely a bit of bad planning, brought to light by the test of trial. Or it is unfortunate exemplification of the fact that no man can grasp all the possibilities of the future.

Serious work in exploration calls for as definite and as rigorous professional preparation as does success in any other serious work in life. The first qualification of an explorer is a sound and trained body. Exploring involves the hardest kind of physical exertion, and the capacity to endure such exertion under stress both for long periods of sustained endeavor and in the trying moments of emergency. How preposterous, then, it is for men who have lived at desks to maturity suddenly to attempt these arduous enterprises! — Roald Amundsen in World's Work.

Had Business Reason for Making Inquiry

Times were hard, and those who had had work clung to it tenaciously. A small steam roller chuff-chuffed noisily up and down a road, which was under repair, and one of the out-of-works watched it for a time, studying the engineer intently.

"How do you feel today?" he asked suddenly.

"Fine. How's yourself?" came the prompt response.

Each succeeding day the lounger appeared, always with the same greeting. The engineer became curious, almost annoyed at the persistent inquiry, and finally demanded:

"Say, what d'you mean by coming and asking 'how do you feel' every day?"

"Well, you see," drawled the loungeer, "you don't look any too well, and I have a hunch that one of these days you'll have to quit your job—and I want to get it."—Vancouver Province.

How to Get Lost

A pompous elderly man, visiting a certain rural district, wished to inspect some ruins in the neighborhood. He inquired for the oldest inhabitant, and assailed him with such a host of needless interrogations that the ancient personage presently lost his temper, and said:

"I'll tell thee a better way yet. Go straight down yonder, take fust turning through a tater field, past the Blue Boar, up Milleston hill, and over the common till you come to the Windy wood; go down till you get into the middle of that 'ere wood, and then——"

"Well, and what then?" demanded the old gentleman.

"Then," said the oldest inhabitant, "I'm blowed if you won't be properly lost!"—London Tit-Bits.

Grounds for Suspicion

"Look there!" said the washing machine agent who visited the hamlet sufficiently often to be fairly well acquainted there. "See those men and boys—yes, and women, too—pointing at Uncle S' nder and grinning after he has passed by. What is tickling them?"

"Old Skinner is a widower," responded the landlord of the taven at Squam. "He is also as stingy as stone soup, but they've found out that while he was up to the city last week he went to a beautie shoppe and paid a whole dollar to get manicured. And they are kinder putting two and two together and making twenty-two of it."—Kansas City Star.

Take Winter as you find him, and he turns out to be a thoroughly honest fellow with no nonsense in him, and tolerating none in you, which is a great comfort in the long run.—Lowell.

HIGH FALLS RESIDENT REMEMBERS QUEEN EMMA.

High Falls, Sept. 27, 1927.
To the Editor of The Freeman.

Dear Sir:—Your article of New Guinea and Queen Emma I find very interesting and would like to correct the statement of her Scotch origin as I took her from Samoa to New Britain Island many years ago on the schooner named "Eudora" belonging to her and used for recruiting labor from the Solomons to New Britain Island where she established her headquarters for business.

It seems that a younger member of a now prominent banking firm of Wall street, being in ill health, chartered a small vessel from San Francisco and cruised from there to Sandwich Islands and eventually to Apia, Navigator Islands, and finding the climate agreeable, remained for a period and married King Meletoa's daughter, and this Queen Emma was the offspring, and her business acumen and ability was derived from this alliance and not from Scotch ancestry as your article states.

Hardly important enough to correct but I send this as I was much interested having traded out there for a year and a half and was very much interested in the article.

M. B. MOODY.

To Preserve Ferns

There are at least two very satisfactory ways to preserve maidenhair ferns. One is to dip the ferns as soon as gathered in perfectly limpid gum water. This should be done carefully. After allowing them to drain for two or three minutes, arrange in a vase to dry. Another very good way is to put the ferns, when first gathered, between two clean sheets of blotting paper. Lay between boards and press for a week or so.

Democrats Silent On 1928 Campaign

Chief Business Was The Nomination of Judge O'Brien—Delegates Disappointed Over The Silence About "Smith For President."

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 29 (AP).—The chief and almost the only official business before the Democratic state convention which met and adjourned here yesterday was the nomination of Judge John F. O'Brien of New York for associate judge of the court of appeals. The 1,152 delegates performed that task promptly, unanimously and strictly according to schedule, but as the rear guard straggled out of Albany today, the came on every lip was not that of Judge John F. O'Brien but Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Some of the delegates were evidently disappointed that they had not had an opportunity to cheer the governor as "our next president," as many of them expected to be able to do. Cheer him they did, but only as their governor, their unchallenged party leader, the "happy warrior," whose speech before them was delivered in thoroughly characteristic style which made clear to all the reason for that sobriquet.

The nearest approach in the convention itself to any direct reference to Governor Smith's presidential candidacy possibilities came when United States Senator Robert F. Wagner cut short the speech he was called upon to make with the declaration that the eyes of the nation were on the meeting here.

Governor Talks.

As for the governor himself, not once did he depart from his avowed purpose of speaking on "government, from the political and financial aspects." With one exception the "government" of which he talked was exclusively that of the state. The exception was when he quoted Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon—whose middle initial he miscalled as "D" several times—in support of his attack on the argument that state governmental expenses are increasing while federal are dropping.

"We hear a great deal of talk about the increased cost of the government in the states and in the cities," said the governor, "and at the same time that we are hearing that, we have a nice, carefully-prepared propaganda coming from another direction that explains to us how by considerations, diligent, businesslike application to the government, we are saving so much money in the nation. Why, the boys and girls in the high school can see that. The reduction in the cost of government of the nation is dropping down from war to peace. It costs money to fight. And we see in the state and in the cities a growing up in expenditure to make up for what we lost during war time.

"Now, where did I get that thought from? Is that original? No. Nothing original about that. Here is where I got it from. I got it from the report of Andrew D. Mellon, secretary of the treasury," taking a copy of the report and reading from it.

Talk Behind Scenes.

But the delegates did hear plenty of "Smith-for-president" talk behind the scenes, before and during and after the convention. Norman E. Mack, national committeeman and veteran Democratic leader of western New York, was by far the most outspoken.

"Governor Smith is certain to be nominated at the Democratic national convention next spring," he said. "The bottom dropped out of the opposition when McAdoo announced several weeks ago that he was not a candidate.

"Either Governor Smith will be the next president or he will come very close to being elected. At any rate, the question of religious prejudice will be dropped forever from American politics."

But all of the presidential talk was entirely behind the scenes. Many openings for allusions or direct references went by absolutely ignored, with the sole exception of Senator Wagner's veiled suggestion. It was evident to political observers that the word had gone out from the leaders that the policy on this score was to be strictly "hands off".

"Have a Heart" Tag Day Saturday

Contributing to the Volunteers of America tomorrow through the purchase of a red heart tag means helping some of the most needy children in the state.

Those who have been invited to compete for the prizes and movie passes are asked to meet their respective leader at headquarters soon after nine o'clock to receive their tags and instructions.

Purchasers are requested to display their tags to avoid second appeals. The committee hopes everyone will have two hearts on Saturday, their own and one of the Volunteers of America to help someone else.

He was such an expense that his father called him Bill.

THE CHILDREN

"CACKLE, cackle," said young Miss Hen, "I feel sorry for children when they become a certain age."

"Why so?" inquired Red Top, the rooster, "pray tell me why so, young Miss Hen. Cock-a-doodle-do, it would be interesting to know why you felt sorry for children."

"When they become a certain age," said young Miss Hen.

"Well, then, when they become a certain age," Red Top repeated. "I'd like to know why you feel sorry for them at such a time or why you have felt sorry for them, or why you will feel sorry for them—if you are going to keep on feeling sorry for them.

"And then, too, I'd be interested in hearing what age children must reach in order to have you feel sorry for them.

"Do you suppose they are thankful and pleased that you feel sorry for them at that age? Are they in need of sympathy then?"

"I Will Answer All Your Questions," Said Young Miss Hen.

"Well," said young Miss Hen, "I will answer all your questions. First of all I feel sorry for children when they reach a certain age because I understand them. In other words I have a fellow feeling for them."

"I don't see," said Red Top, "how a young hen can have a fellow feeling for a lot of children."

"I mean," said young Miss Hen, "that I understand how they feel because I, too, have had the same feelings.

"Little children are always so much admired. They are thought so cunning and if they're naughty they seem to be very quickly forgiven and they're smiled at almost at all times. They're hugged and loved and made great pets of and everyone thinks they're so sweet and pretty and dear and forgivable.

"Then they become a little older. If they're bad they're scolded good and hard. They're not thought nearly so cunning, and they're not thought nearly so sweet, nor so lovable, nor so dear, nor are they smiled at almost at all times.

"Sometimes it is said they have reached the awkward age. I do not know what age it is or just when it comes but it is the age between being a little child and a big boy or girl.

"It comes at different times, or at different ages, not always at the same time with everyone. I do not know whether children are thankful and pleased that I have so much sympathy for them at such times or not, but I have at any rate. And the reason for it is this. Yes, this is the reason why I so thoroughly understand, and I know how they feel when they're not admired as they have been and I know how it makes them feel only more awkward. You see when I was a little chick I was a dear, plump, fuzzy, cunning little thing.

"I had soft yellow down and I was really quite sweet. I realize it now that it has gone from me. Then I became older. I couldn't help it. It was not my fault. And I grew. My shape was awkward and I moved awkwardly. If I bumped into anything or run in a silly way I was called silly, but if I had done the same thing as a little chick I would have been thought a poor, dear, frightened little chicken.

"And as I became older I became more and more awkward and more and more I realized that people thought of me as being a pretty unattractive hen.

"Then I heard some people talking about some children who had grown from babyhood into boyhood and girlhood. They said these children had been so cunning when they had been little but that now they were at the awkward age.

"And I've seen so much of it since—unappreciated children because they're not little and cunning, and it's the same way with hens! The very same way. Ah, it is a great shame!

"Hens are awkward, too, before they become older, settled hens. They understand how children feel. Ah yes, young hens are sympathetic. They know what it is like to lose their dear little chick ways and looks and to be thought so much less attractive and not loved in the same indulgent, affectionate way."

"Now I understand," said Red Top, "and I don't wonder you have a 'fellow feeling,' as you call it, for children."

Student Strikers Score Victory

Council Passes Bill For The Immediate Construction of a Temporary School To Accommodate Negro Students.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 29 (AP).—Emerson High School's student strike has ended with virtually a complete victory for the strikers.

The final act leading to settlement came last night when the city council passed to final reading a bill to appropriate $15,000 for immediate construction of a temporary school to accommodate negro students now enrolled at Emerson High. Enrollment of these negro students stands nearly 1,200 students on strike today.

The council's action followed a conference between the student strike committee and Mayor Florence E. Williams, at which a petition was drawn up requesting the appropriation of the money for the immediate building of the school, the students in turn agreeing to return to class pending its construction.

A formal ending of the strike was looked for today at a mass meeting of the student body called by the strike leaders at which the agreement was to be put to a vote. No opposition was expected.

SAWS

By Viola Brothers Shore

FOR THE GOOSE—

A LOTTA women'd like to keep their figures while they're young and still have grandchildren for their old age.

A hypocrite has got a long face for the neighbors and a different one for herself. But a woman with a martyr complex has got a long face even for herself.

If a woman once lets herself get eaten up by an emotion, everything she sees, hears, thinks or feels is only that much more food for it.

FOR THE GANDER—

History don't record no single case of a man that ever lost his drag with a woman from buyin' her flowers—even the wrong kind.

There's no excuse for not knowin' the kind of flowers your girl likes. It ain't the sort of thing women is in the habit of makin' no particular secret about.

A man that knew how to buy a woman flowers could get away with anything short of halitosis.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"DRY" WINE

EVEN in these prohibition days it can hardly be said that alcoholic beverages are taboo as far as conversation is concerned! And so we are all familiar with the reference to certain wines as "dry wines."

Distillers will tell you that in making wines the fermentation is controlled in accordance with the type of product that is desired. In some wines it is checked at an early stage, and the product is a sweet wine. Wine that is permitted complete fermentation, however, is classified as "dry."

Why the term for a completely fermented or sour wine? Let us turn for a moment to another figurative use of the word "dry," our slang expression "dry wit." Mr. Webster defines it as characterized by a quality that is "severe, hard, sharp," and gives further significance of "dry" as "lacking sweetness!" When we learn, then, that in a dry wine the fermentation has eliminated all but 1 per cent of the sugar, the aptness of the term is easily comprehensible!

WNU Service

Do You Know ...??... That: ...??...

THE expression "booby" today denotes a dunce or a spiritless person.

It originates from a bird, a sort of a pelican called a booby. This bird is a very submissive animal. It allows itself to be attacked by other birds and without resistance gives the fish or food which it has caught for itself. Hence the submissive and spiritless fellow is aptly called a booby.—Anna S. Turnquist.
